VOLUME 70 BLOOMINGTON HIGH SCHOOL

BLOOMINGTON, ILLINOIS

DEDICATION

Mrs. Barford, while supervising the annual T.B. testing program, gives instructions to an assistant in the auditorium.

Since 1956, Mrs. Barford has always been ready and willing to cheerfully soothe pains, comfort the sick, and tend everything from broken bones and sprains to headaches and upset stomachs.

She received her nurses training at and graduated from Cook County Hospital School of Nursing and then attended the Teacher's College of Columbia. This education prepared her for the various duties and incidents that have confronted her each day for the past twelve years.

Because of her constant, unfailing will to help and comfort all who seek her aid, we, the yearbook staff, wish to express our thanks and dedicate the 1968 Aepix to Mrs. Ruth Barford.

Taking the temperatures of sick students in her office is only one facet of Mrs. Barford's busy day as school nurse.

Autumn

The "Yellow Brick Road" began its path outside the gymnasium and concluded its journey at the throne of the Homecoming Queen. Seated on the throne, Queen Laura Myers and her court, Reggie Sproat, Sharmon Hilfinger, Katie Olofson, and Susan Harper, reign over the Land of Oz.

With tears of joy, Laura Myers reigns as queen after being crowned before the student body in an all-school assembly.

Aglow with happiness, Queen Laura Myers waves from a convertible to onlooking spectators at the Homecoming game.

Ron Bess, featured speaker at the Homecoming assembly, stresses good sportsmanship.

Purple Raiders Drown Vikings

In their formal gowns, the 1967-68 Homecoming court captivated the assembly audience as they were escorted down the aisle Friday morning by senior lettermen.

Head in hands and sobbing with joy, Laura Myers received the cherished honor of becoming our 24th annual Homecoming queen.

At an afternoon pep assembly, the fighting Raider, swinging a vicious-looking war club, burst through a paper barrier, aided by two cheerleaders, and danced to the pounding of Indian war drums.

In the last seconds of the Homecoming game Friday night, Jim Cox intercepted a would-be touchdown pass, leading the Raiders to a 19-14 victory over the Danville Vikings.

Receiving bids from the Wicked Witch of the West, couples "Followed the Yellow Brick Road" Saturday night to the music of Sound Studio Number One.

In an effort to raise school spirit, Student Council presents a pre-game skit in which Dan Muxfeld and fellow Raiders, assisted by Mascot Sally Cox, capture an oncoming Viking ship.

After reading her name, Student Council President Steve Yount crowns Laura Myers as the 1967 Homecoming Queen.

Saturday morning, Laurie Livingston and Jeff Tinervin help decorate the gymnasium for the Homecoming dance.

Couples Follow 'Yellow Brick Road'

Attired in semi-formal dress, class members dance to the music of Sound Studio Number One. Staged Saturday night, the dance provided a fitting closing for the 1967 Homecoming.

Elections Spur Student Participation

Autumn brought many unforgettable people and events to the corridors of the school. The sophomores began by cluttering the halls with their considerable number of 535. While sophomore girls became date-oriented with senior boys, senior girls complained vehemently.

However, before long, students were faced with class elections and football games. For one week the halls and stairwells of the school were cluttered with imaginative campaign posters. Competing nominees worked feverishly and nervously on their campaign speeches.

Exciting football games rallied the support of students and parents, the Pep Club, Pep Band, and the entertaining Marching Band.

Climaxing the autumn season was Homecoming. The school symbol, an Iroquois Indian, which had been decided upon and adopted by the Student Council prior to the festivities, was presented to the student body during the Homecoming assembly Friday afternoon.

Connie Denler helps clutter staircases and halls with campaign posters during the all-school class elections.

Council members Christee Wilkinson, Denise Kennedy, and Chris Taylor decorate for the Homecoming Alumni Tea.

'The Crucible' Portrays Witch Trials

Tituba cries out in fear and confesses her witchcraft as she is confronted by Reverend Parris, Reverend Hale, and Mr. Putnam.

"The devil is loose in Salem!" was the cry which expressed the mood of Arthur Miller's drama "The Crucible."

For two nights, students brought to the stage the fear and superstition which culminated in the Salem witchcraft trials. From the vague forebodings of the first scene to the tragic climax, the cast succeeded in capturing the emotional frenzy of the drama.

Under the direction of Mrs. Darlene File, the cast rehearsed five nights a week, sometimes while the stage crew was working behind the scenes. Over 100 students labored to transform the stage into 17th century Salem. While the stage crew built and painted scenery for the four settings of the play, other crews created the costumes and props and took charge of the publicity for the drama.

The long weeks of hard work were climaxed in November by two performances.

While Reverend Parris calms the shrieking Betty, Abigail chants the names of those she has seen with the devil.

Reverend John Hale and Francis Nurse listen in awe as Ezekiel Cheever relates the amazing events of the Salem witch trials.

John Proctor tries unsuccessfully to reassure his wife Elizabeth after they learn that she has been accused of being a witch during the court proceedings.

Staffs Experience Many Deadlines

The staffs of Aegis and Aepix worked diligently on their publications for the 1967-1968 year.

Aegis members began the year by learning to write news stories, editorials, and headlines. The four editors spent many long, frantic hours after school with Adviser Wayne Livingston correcting copy and drawing layouts.

After modernizing the paper by adding some new type styles and omitting the column rules, staff members distributed the first paper, Sept. 28. The newly adopted Raider symbols, an Iroquois warrior and war club, were added to the nameplate of the Homecoming issue, Oct. 20.

By this time, Aepix members had begun their year by making "dummy" layouts for practice. These layouts were soon followed by the writing of headlines and copy. Later the staff came to school on Saturdays and Sundays as well as after school to meet its deadlines.

Both publications were aided by four photographers. These boys spent their time taking and developing pictures for both publications throughout the school year.

Ad staff members Cindy Linton, Toni Williams, Kathy France, Judy Marquardt, and Sally Albrecht prepare to go downtown.

Working on the yearbook index, seniors Anne Morris and Joan Lawson take the card files out of the supply cabinet.

Striving to meet her deadline, Laurie Livingston, junior reporter, pecks out a news story after school Friday night.

Aegis editors Debbie Hall, Dick Currin, Effie Bledsoe, and Jackie Cole examine the newspaper before it is printed.

Hopeful Authors Publish Supplement

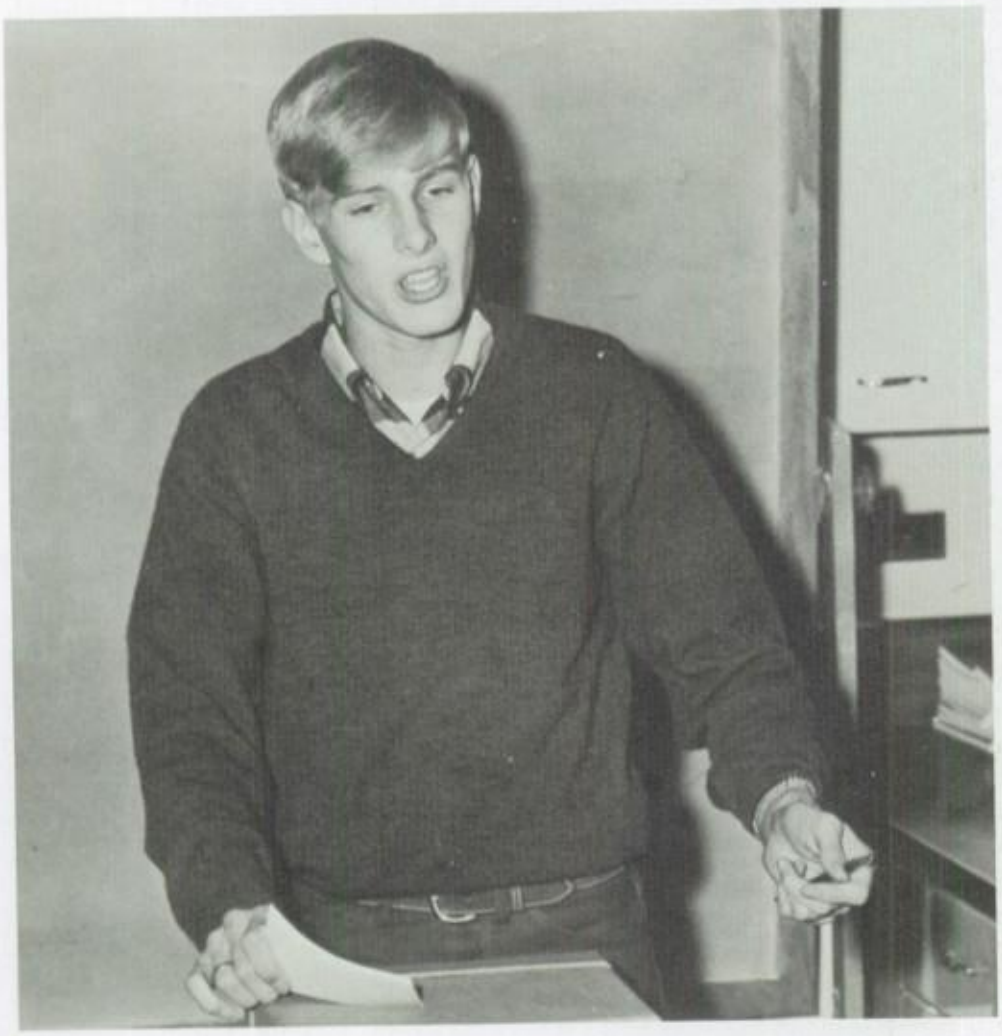
Many young authors were happy to see that this year the Short Story Club decided to re-establish the practice of publishing a literary supplement. This supplement consisted of short stories and poems written by members of the club.

Social activities during the year included a Christmas potluck dinner and the viewing of a play at a local university. The club was also privileged to listen to several informative talks given by local authors and professors who helped in giving them tips for better material.

The banquet committee kept busy during the year preparing a theme and decorations for the climactic spring banquet. Traditionally, club members competed for the prized Merwin Cup, which was presented at the banquet for the best short story. The Inman Cup for the second place story and medals for poetry winners were also given to deserving recipients in the midst of a delicious meal, thus ending the year's activities.

Between bites of party sandwiches and cookies, John Cronenberg and Stephanie Swibaker chat at the club's Christmas party.

Speakers Prepare For Competition



Talk, talk, talk. That's all they do! But for the Forensic Club, talking became a sport requiring practice, skill, and a lot of time and energy.

Speech activities this year included individual events and debate. Individual speakers doggedly practiced selected cuttings from plays, poems, stories and speeches or, in original events, used their own material.

Representing the school, students competed in prose and poetry reading, serious reading, original monologue, oratorical declamation, comedy reading, radio and after dinner speaking and extemporaneous speaking. Reader's Theater was also added this year.

The debate team met twice a week to research this year's topic concerning criminal investigations and to discuss relevant issues.

A flourish of contests ended another success-marked year of Forensic Club.

Utilizing logic and evidence, Paul Hultgren refutes an affirmative argument in a practice debate after school.

New Director Guides Thespian Talents

As the curtain went up, Thespian members were seen taking on-stage and behind-the-scene parts under the new direction of Mrs. Darlene File.

During the year the Thespians produced the fall play, "The Crucible," the two one-act winter plays, "The Bald Soprano" and "The Lesson," and the annual contest play, a cutting from "The Crucible." They also aided in the production of the Spring Senior Class play, a project which enriched the class treasury.

Although kept busy by their numerous plays, Thespians found time to enjoy a picnic and a Christmas party. Even at the annual Christmas party, Thespian members couldn't seem to stop producing plays. The initiates were seen enacting "How the Grinch Stole Christmas."

Junior Diane Poynter renders her assistance in making a Santa Claus costume out of tissue paper for Thespian initiate Kevin Barlow at the Society's annual Christmas initiation party.

Anticipating the difficulty of the next day's assignment, Juniors Ann Bodine, center, and Linda Quinn begin preparing for it by staging a discussion with Miss Detweiler, their English teacher.

"Double, double, toil and trouble. Fire burn, and cauldron bubble." "Burn baby burn." These lines were heard in senior English classes as students compared "Macbeth" with "Macbird!" Other works that were read included "Gulliver's Travels," "A Tale of Two Cities," and "Canterbury Tales."

Junior English classes were thrilled as some of the teachers acted out their readings such as "The Scarlet Letter," "Huckleberry Finn," "Moby Dick," "The Red Badge of Courage," and "Death of a Salesman."

Sophomores enjoyed a new film featuring King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table, which correlated with their study of "Idylls of the King."

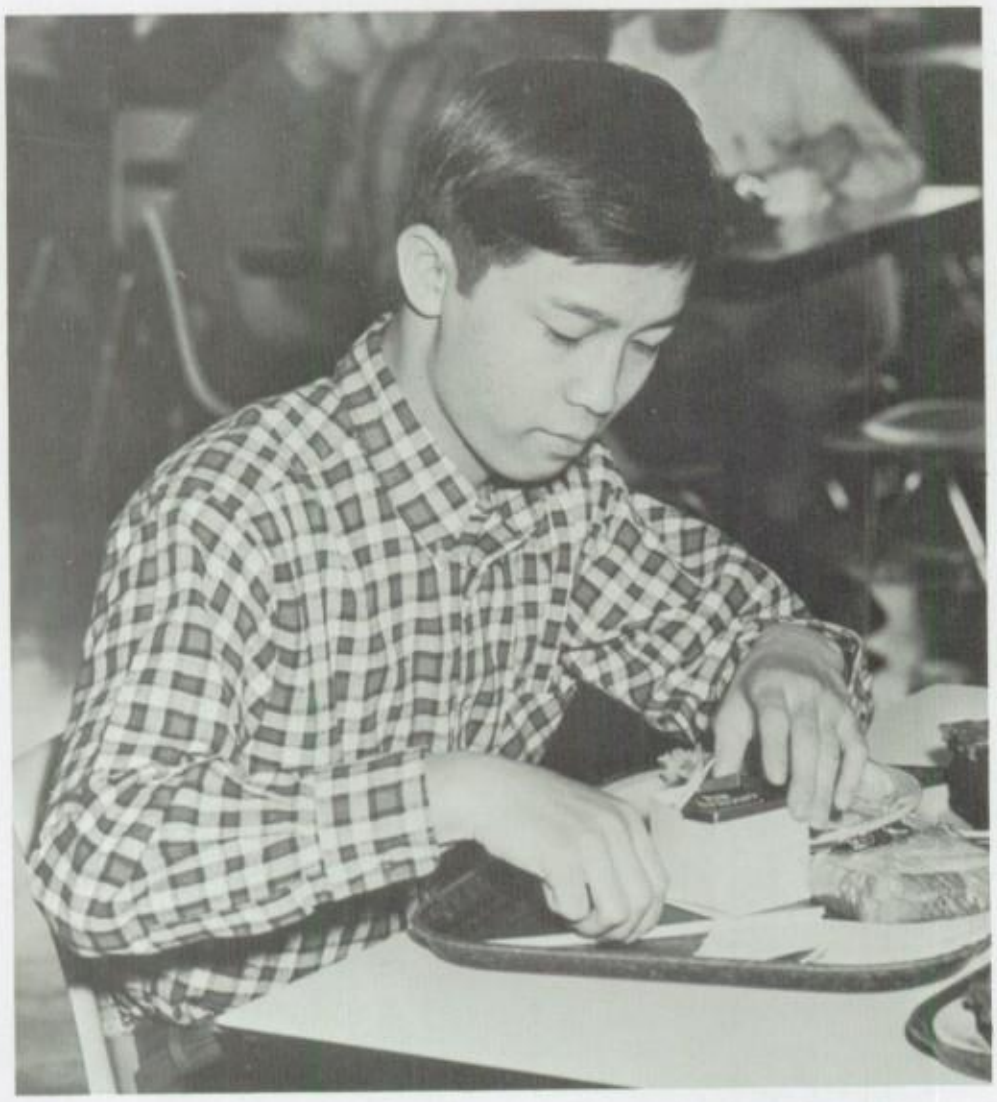
Asahigawa's Uede Joins Class Of '68



Enjoying a welcome break from the classroom's many activities, Tommy leisurely enjoys his lunch in the school's cafeteria.

With a warm smile, Toshimitsu "Tommy" Uede greeted many new American friends and students during his stay at the school.

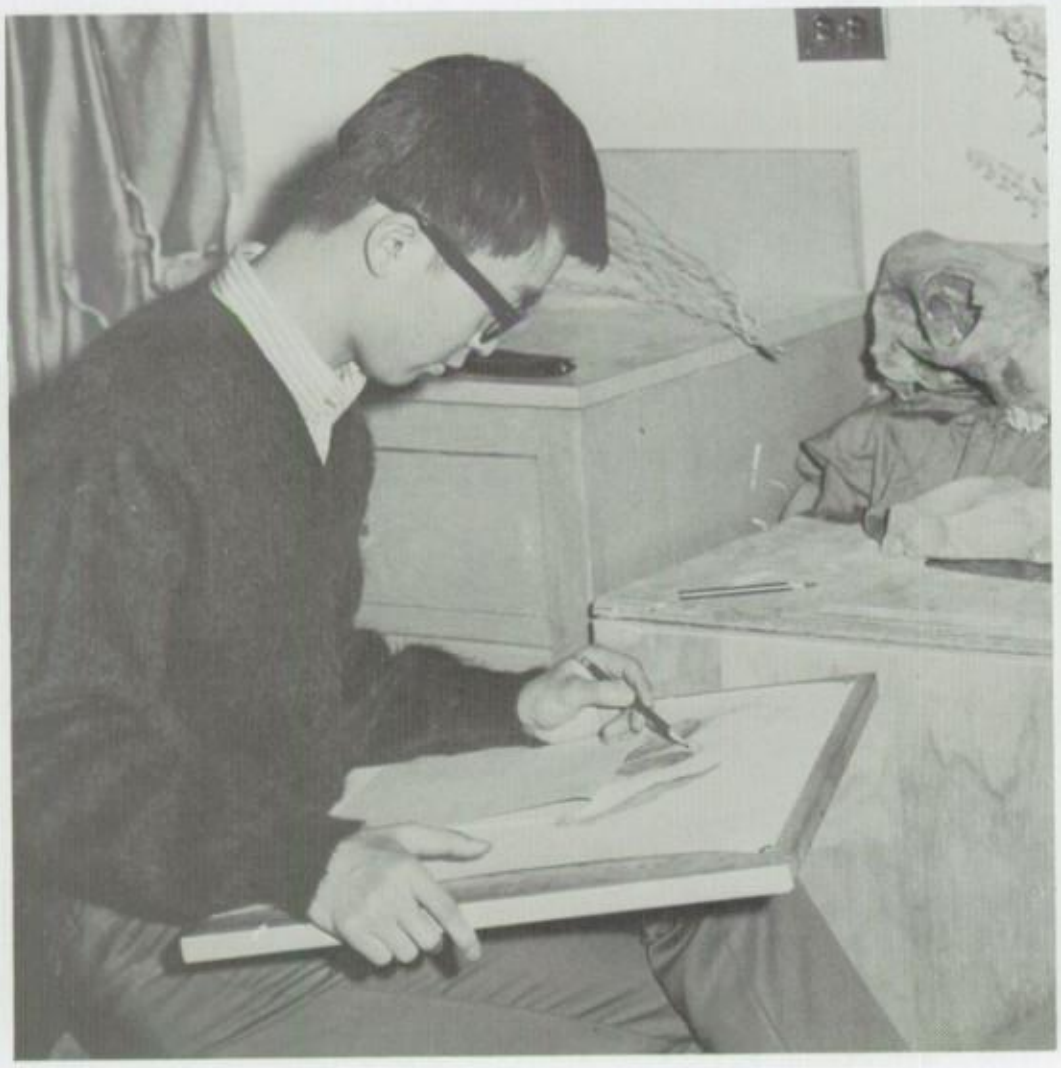
Coming from Blomington's sister city, Asahigawa, Tommy was the third student from Japan and the seventh foreign student to come to the school and attend its classes.

Tommy left his own family in Japan and became a member of the Roscoe McPherren's during his visit to our town. In doing so Tommy experienced American family life.

While here, Tommy had the chance to experience an American school and its students. Tommy was introduced to the new early class this year as were many other students. He began the day with a physical education class. During the school day Tommy braved the hallways to get to his classes, which ranged from Art to College Algebra. Extracurricular activities were also on Tommy's agenda. He attended athletic events and bowled for fun.

Tommy's trip to Bloomington was sponsored by the Cultural Exchange Program that operates between the sister cities.

While balancing his drawing board on one knee, Tommy sketches a still life during Miss Stein's sixth hour art class.



Preparing himself for the icy water, Tommy gets ready to dive into the pool during his zero hour swim class.

Social Science Explores Problems

During her second hour world problems class, Junior Peggy Anderson points out a country in western Africa to Mr. Hurley.

This year the social science faculty added two new members to its staff, Jerry Barton and John Hurley.

The students of Verle Fairfield's American History classes took part in a survey to see what their favorite television programs were. "I Spy" and "Mission Impossible" were among the favorites mentioned, while one senior said his favorite program was "Captain Kangaroo."

During the school year students of Robert Bryant's and Mr. Fairfield's classes were taught by student teachers. Miss Ford and Mrs. MacDonald made history both enjoyable and enlightening during their short stay at Bloomington High School.

In Mr. Hurley's economics classes the students conducted their own collective bargaining situation. Representatives of management and labor were chosen, and the two sides attempted to reach compatible agreements. Arbitration, however, was necessary because neither of the two sides could come to an agreement on the various issues.

By using such diverse methods the social science faculty made their subjects more interesting.

Industrialists Add New CWT Course

The Industrial Education Department expanded its offerings this year with a new course as part of the Co-operative Work Training Program (CWT).

Supervised by Gerald Jackson, the course was designed to create an understanding of the skills in the industrial and business worlds. As part of the program, students received on-the-job training in businesses throughout the community.

With the addition of the CWT Program, the department now offered students a selection of 13 individual courses.

Homemakers Collect For UNICEF

With "Happiness is Homemaking" as a theme, the Home Economics Club initiated a year of varying activities. Members augmented the club treasury by selling pencils and candy and sponsoring a bake sale. Cake, pie, cookies, and candy were carefully prepared and sold.

Other events included an autumn wiener roast and scavenger hunt and a Christmas party. Members broadened their knowledge during three meetings which featured speakers. On Halloween the Future Homemakers showed their willingness to help others by collecting money for needy children overseas in the "Trick or Treat for UNICEF" campaign.

The annual banquet with the theme "Dreams Come True" and the presentation of awards highlighted the year. Members worked conscienciously on the food and decorations to make the April banquet a success. Elections in May of the 1968-69 officers ended the year's activities.

Before the scavenger hunt, Rebecca Johnson, Martha Stansbury, Ann Bodine, Wilma Watson, and Donna Swallow check their list.

Teachers Stress Wise Home Planning

Instructors of the Home Economics courses offered students a bridge between the present and the future, between school life and home life.

Foods 10 gave girls a background in marketing and in planning, preparing, and serving meals. During the Christmas season the making of holiday breads, cookies, and candies was mastered.

Foods 11 emphasized the value of nutrition in meal planning. Students learned to prepare the elements of a meal from appetizers to desserts.

Clothing 10 and 11 instructed girls in the art of sewing. The selection of patterns and material and the making of various articles of clothing were learned. Girls gained valuable knowledge about style and clothing construction.

Homemaking 12 introduced the students to many aspects of home life. Such subjects as interior decoration were included in the course.

Service Groups Perfom Many Jobs

During the past year, various students unselfishly volunteered to help members of the faculty. Among these were the monitors, librarians, and projectionists.

Second hour each morning, monitors distributed the absence reports to the teachers. They also picked up the absence slips throughout the day and delivered messages to classrooms.

The student librarians assisted their fellow classmates and helped Librarians Miss Wollman and Mrs. Swan. Checking out books to students and re-shelving books occupied the assistant librarians' time.

Projectionists also donated their assistance by helping the faculty members operate the movie and filmstrip projectors. Delivering machines to classrooms and assisting with broken film or deficient projectors were a regular part of the projectionists' busy day.

Counselors and Special Education teachers again demonstrated their exceptional patience and sincere understanding as students sought answers to many questions during the year.

Counselors administered various tests such as the Kuder Preference Test to sophomores, PSAT to juniors, and ACT and SAT to seniors. Test results were explained to the participating students by the helpful counselors.

Students attended meetings explaining vocations and listened to the information of representatives from colleges throughout the country. Seniors were aided by college counselor Russell Roberts in college selection and application.

Guidance counselors were always willing to discuss personal problems, course selection, and the scheduling of classes with students to best prepare them for their future.

Varsity Squad Earns 3-6 Count

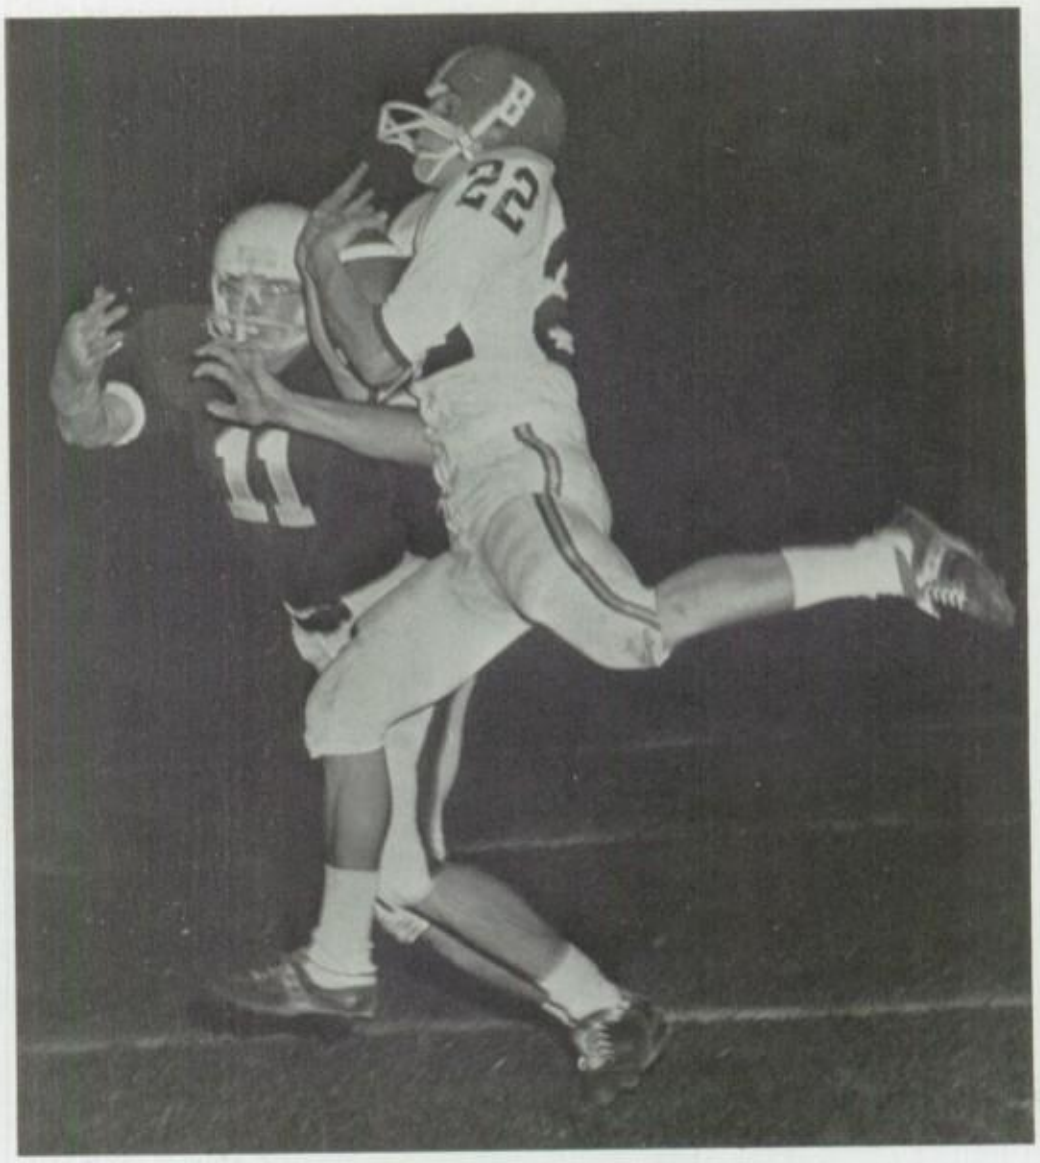
As the rain fell, so did the varsity football squad. Bad weather prevailed as the Raiders fell to six opponents and earned a season record of 3-6. Five out of the nine games were played in the rain.

Despite the losses there were a few bright spots in the Raiders' season: the Central Catholic, Danville, and Mattoon games.

The gridders defeated Central Catholic for their first victory. Jim Cox, key to the Raider offense, passed 19 yards for the first tally, and Jim Bryant and Greg Dambold scampered 8 and 7 yards, respectively, for the final Raider counters.

In the Homecoming tilt, Cox rifled a 30-yard pass to Greg Dambold for the first of three touchdowns. Not long after this, Cox hauled in a 30-yard pass from Steve Mardis for six more points. In the second half Cox again scored on a four-yard run.

The third victory of the season came in a contest with Mattoon. In spite of the muddy field and inclement weather, the Raiders downed the Green Wave, 17-6.



Raider split-end Chuck Cunningham hauls in one of his many receptions during the Homecoming game against Danville.

Sophomores Compile 5-2-1 Record

Upholding a winning tradition of the past few seasons, the football fledglings compiled an impressive 5-2-1 record.

In accomplishing this feat the squad racked up a team total of 125 points to the opponents' 74. Of this total Loren Bozarth ran up 9 touchdowns and 6 conversions for 60 points. Bozarth also teamed up with Keith Smith for 1,071 yards on the ground, while Steve Henderson, quarterback, provided the versatility of the squad's attack by going to the air for 505 yards.

The football team, after remaining undefeated through their first six games, ended their season by dropping their final two encounters to Decatur Eisenhower and Springfield Griffin, both by the narrow margin of 12-7.

Coach James R. Bowers and Assistant Coach Barry Nixon sparked the successful season by stressing the fundamentals of the game.

The distance men placed fourth in the Big 12 and fifth in District competition. Coach Delmar Swearingen commented that the team did well considering the squad's bad luck due to injuries.

Squad Captain Jim Bowers, Dave Penn, and Jim Trefzger powered the team to victories in Intercity competition and established cross country as an integral part of the school's athletic program.

As the anxious class members of 1970 entered their sophomore year, the students were greeted by a host of new activities.

One of the new tasks of the sophomores was to elect responsible class officers and Student Council representatives. As in the junior high school the candidates made buttons and posters. For the first time, however, a petition and campaign speech were necessary.

Along with the juniors and seniors the students participated in the United Fund "Raider Race" and delivered Christmas baskets.

Adviser Miss Mary Jeanette Munce discussed with the sophomore class officers, seated, Debbie Holland and Cathy Lane and, standing, Mary Marsee and Steve Yount, future class plans.

Winter

While waiting for the refreshments, Karen King discusses events of the day with Mr. Bryant at the annual Senior-Faculty Tea.

Judy Ogren, junior Student Council representative, places ornaments on the traditional Christmas tree in the Student Center.

Yuletide Assembly Sparks Holiday Spirit

"Deck the halls with boughs of holly." Well, it wasn't exactly holly, but the school corridors were decked with ornaments. The Student Center was decorated with the traditional tree and lights.

""Tis the season to be jolly." Students were in a joyous mood as Christmas approached. With the spirit of giving, members of the homerooms distributed heaping baskets to 56 families in need.

"Don we now our gay apparel." Seniors donned their best for dress-up day and the annual Senior Faculty Tea. "Troll the ancient Yuletide carol" was the order of the day as band and choir members combined to present the Christmas assembly.

When the day came to a close, students wished their teachers and fellow students a "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year," as the holidays began with many "Fa La La La La, La La La La's."

Bob Bielenberg escorts Sonda Strayer to the stage for the Madrigal presentation in the Christmas assembly.

Jim Loftin, playing the role of Santa Claus, helps his fellow homeroom student, Ron Long, deliver a Christmas package.

Winter Season Offers Brisk Activities

Paul Asheim takes advantage of the G.A.A. concession stand by buying from Association members Amy Brown and Mary Lou Daley.

Although winter officially began on December 21, the first snowfall marked the arrival of winter for most students. Snow brought both delight and discomfort. Some found pleasure in snowball fights and skiing, but shoveling snow and pushing stalled cars were less than enjoyable.

Winter touched off other activities of the season, including Christmas shopping, caroling, and the holiday festivities.

Football gave way to basketball, wrestling, and swimming as Raider fans braved snowstorms to cheer the teams on to victory. Faithful members of the Girls' Athletic Association manned the concession stand to cater to the tastes of gamegoers.

Clearing snow from the parking lot to enable students to adequately park their cars, Bill McFarland works during the early morning hours amid cold and snowy weather.

For his years of service as athletic director, Howard Saar accepts an award from Principal G. Elwood Wheeler.

'Theatre Of Absurd' Heads Program

Experiments in theater headed the playbill on February 2-3. Under the direction of Mrs. Darlene File and student director Sharmon Hilfinger, Bloomington took an unusual step forward in high school theater with the production of Eugene Ionesco's "The Bald Soprano" and "The Lesson."

Both plays were based upon the lack of communication and the meaninglessness of language in our society. They expressed the idea that man's existence was purposeless, and that he couldn't express himself through language.

The two plays were works of the Theatre of the Absurd, which has been a new trend in play productions for the past six years.

Bob Bielenberg, the firechief, embraces Sandy Stull, the maid, as he remembers her as his "little firehose."

In "The Bald Soprano" David Tompkins and Amy Brown decide that it is "not unlikely" that they are married.

Bob Mays as the professor in "The Lesson" stabs his pupil, Molly Lauder, when he finds she is not the perfect student.

A Cappella Hootenanny Ends Picnic

Each day as the A Cappella choir entered their room, they began with warm-up exercises of sight readings which were written on the board. A Cappella, directed by Samuel Anliker, spent most of their class time preparing for Homecoming, Christmas Vespers, and various other performances for the community and the students.

At the annual picnic in the autumn, choir members participated in several games and then staged a hootenanny.

This year the vocal group formerly known as B Choir changed its name to Cadet Choir. The Cadet Choir and the Trebleaires, a girls' ensemble, were featured at the Christmas Vespers and spring concert.

Madrigals again this year presented special arrangements of 15th through 17th century English music. The boys adopted traditional English costumes to correspond with the period.

Janet Schwulst and Becky Barnard, A Cappella members, help themselves to a variety of food at the annual autumn picnic.

Trip To France Rewards Musicians

"Practice makes perfect," as the saying goes, and band and orchestra members concentrated on making it so. Rehearsals were held daily, but members also found it necessary to practice on their own time.

Highlighting the fall season, the orchestra presented the "String Festival." Later, three musicians, Jim Thornton, Scott Wylie, and John Baileng were selected to go to Dijon, France to play in an orchestra of Illinois high school musicians.

With spirited tunes and smart march maneuvers the band filled its meaningful niche at many school activities, while the pep band roused school spirit at pep assemblies and basketball games. During the winter season, band members participated in the annual Christmas assembly and vesper service.

Spring activities for both band and orchestra members included solo and ensemble entries on the district and state levels after weeks of practicing and polishing.

Then, on that last big day, musicians from the band escorted the seniors down the aisle at commencement to "Pomp and Circumstance."

Mr. Larson, Orchestra director, pained by the combination of musicians' mistakes and his broken arm, leads a practice session.

Supervised by Miss Elizabeth Stein, Art Club members held an initiation meeting at the Anglers Club. The initiates, following a theme of artistic endeavor, were required to dress as various masterpieces of Rembrandt, Leonardo da Vinci, and other famous artists.

During the Christmas season, students printed names and designs of stationery with linoleum blocks to extend their artistic horizons.

Guest speakers also shared their experiences with the Art Club students. The members, in turn, expressed their talents through their works.

At the Anglers' Club, Winnie poses with Anita Cargill, Laura Myers, and Rita Mehl to illustrate a famous portrait.

In preparation for the Christmas season Miss Stein helps Steve Marks construct decorator lanterns for the Student Center.

Instructors Develop Students' Talents

Throughout the school year, students in Miss Elizabeth Stein's art classes sketched, painted, and molded their imagination and creativity into pictures and other objects of art.

Meanwhile, participants in A Cappella and Cadet Choir, under the new direction of Samuel Anliker, strove to perfect their vocal abilities. After many long hours of rehearsing, the students performed at assemblies for the school and at various other public events such as Christmas Vespers.

Band and Orchestra members also contributed much to the academic and social activities. James Bowers, director, led the band to a successful year with the introduction of the majorettes and marching band. The orchestra, directed by Richard Larson, entertained pupils of many grade schools.

Bake Sale, Picnic Violate Tradition

What happened to Spanish Club's Christmas pinata and the annual spring banquet? These customary events were replaced by a bake sale, a bowling night, a dance and a spring picnic. "Break tradition!" was the club's motto of the year.

At the initiation meeting Norm Brown groped through a pile of flour in order to pick up a thimble with his teeth. As Mindy Klynstra's initiation ended, a cream pie was thrown in her face.

The Christmas celebration, including the breaking of a piñata, was replaced by a bowling party at Circle Lanes. Adviser Mrs. Nora Kirchner and many "estudiantes" experienced their first bowling adventure at this meeting.

In January tradition was broken again. Girls baked cakes and cookies, and boys helped sell. The bake sale replaced the selling of candy to finance the picnic which climaxed the year.

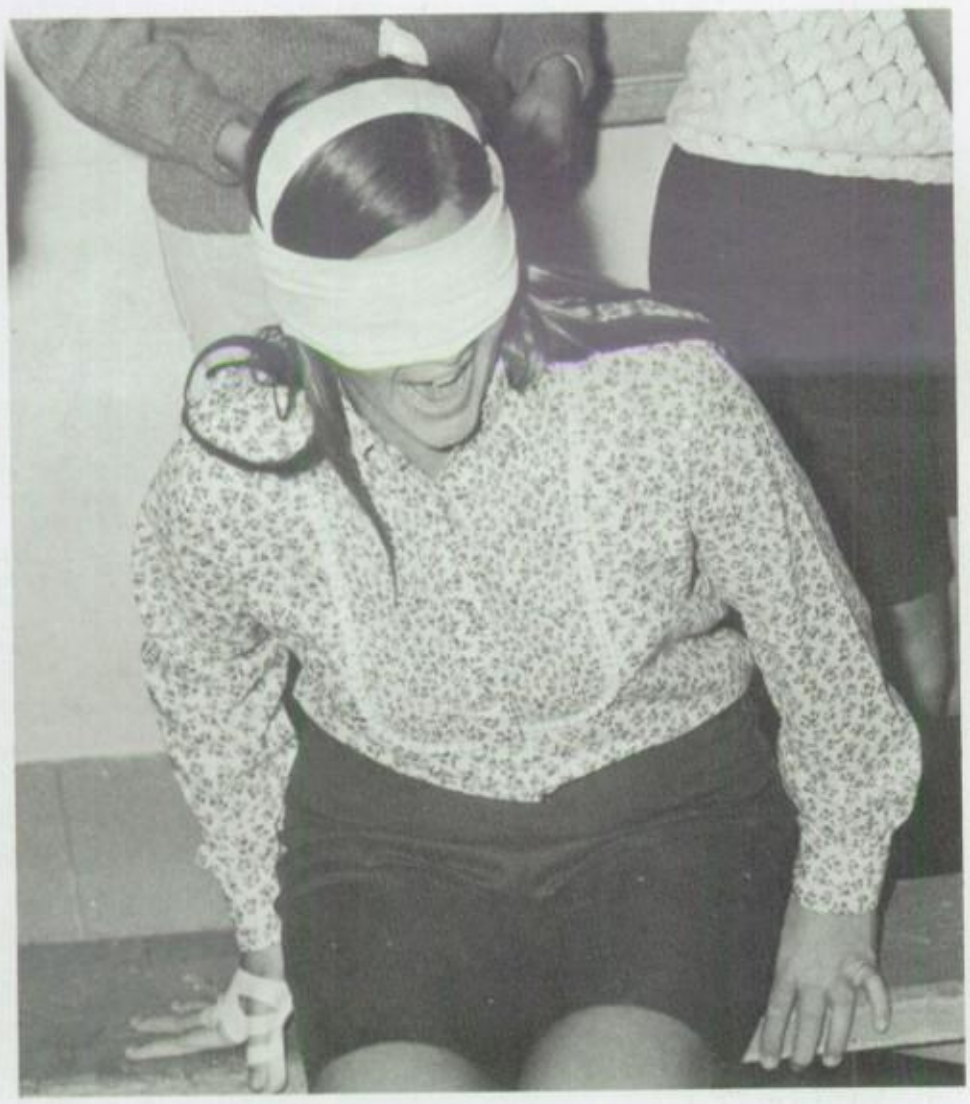
Wet Sponges Plague French Initiates



Tradition played a part in this year's French Club activities. The traditional candle ceremony triggered the initiation events, thoroughly confusing the initiates as usual. During a more informal section of the initiation, blind-folded initiates sat on wet sponges conveniently placed by "helpful" senior French Club members. More fortunate were the contestants in a jelly bean race across the study hall.

A more serious activity during the autumn was a program presented by a local college student, who spoke about her activities during her junior year abroad in Europe.

Also during the autumn, members viewed slides taken by John McAtee, mathematics instructor. He traveled abroad to France and other European countries last summer.

Naturally, Mardi Gras was the high point of the year with its gay festivities and costumes.

Making a big splash, initiate Lorna Schriner involuntarily sits on a wet sponge during an informal part of the French Club initiation directed by fourth year French students.

Neophytes Perform Skits At Initiation

Latin Club membership again turned out to be the largest of any language club. Students studying this ancient language enjoyed learning about the customs and lives of the Romans through films, slides, and talks.

At the initiation party the neophytes were required to put on skits for the members of Latin Club which reflected the Roman times.

Richard T. Scanlan, a professor at the University of Illinois, presented an interesting speech and showed slides of the Greek and Roman theatres and buildings at the December meeting. Following his talk, the speaker joined the students in a meat loaf dinner prepared by the members.

Through the assistance of Roger Ruddy and Miss Mary Jeannette Munce, a large number of students participated in the various events of the year.

Four languages were offered to interested students this year—French, Latin, and Spanish on a four-year basis and German on a two-year basis—for a total of fourteen language courses. Teachers encouraged completion of four years of one language for full college preparation.

This year Miss Carol Creed, a former physical education instructor, began teaching German. She replaced John McAtee, who started teaching all math courses. As a result of Miss Creed's efforts, a German club was formed. The club had an enrollment of approximately 39 members.

As in past years, national language tests were given to classes and individual students. These tests, on the competitive basis, included grammar, vocabulary, translation, and sentence structure. Awards, such as certificates, pins, and trophies, were presented to those with the highest ratings.

Council Sponsors United Fund Drive

The 1967-68 Student Council, under the leadership of President Steve Yount, undertook many projects.

The Council's first activity, Homecoming, took many long hours to plan before the student body had the opportunity to take part in the twenty-fourth annual Homecoming.

"Raider Race" was the theme that Student Council chose for the United Fund Campaign. The student body met their goal of $683.50 during the week-long drive. The Council undertook another project of distributing Christmas baskets to 56 underprivileged families.

"After-the-game dances" provided recreation for the students and helped raise money for the Council. Climaxing the year, the Council assumed the responsibility of collecting $1,000 to build a Peace Corps-sponsored school overseas. This project replaced the traditional American Field Service drive.

Kurt Zimmer and Susan Harper place the letters for the events of the day on the Student Council calendar-of-events board before hanging it in the Council's office window.

Varsity Cagers Suffer Losing Season

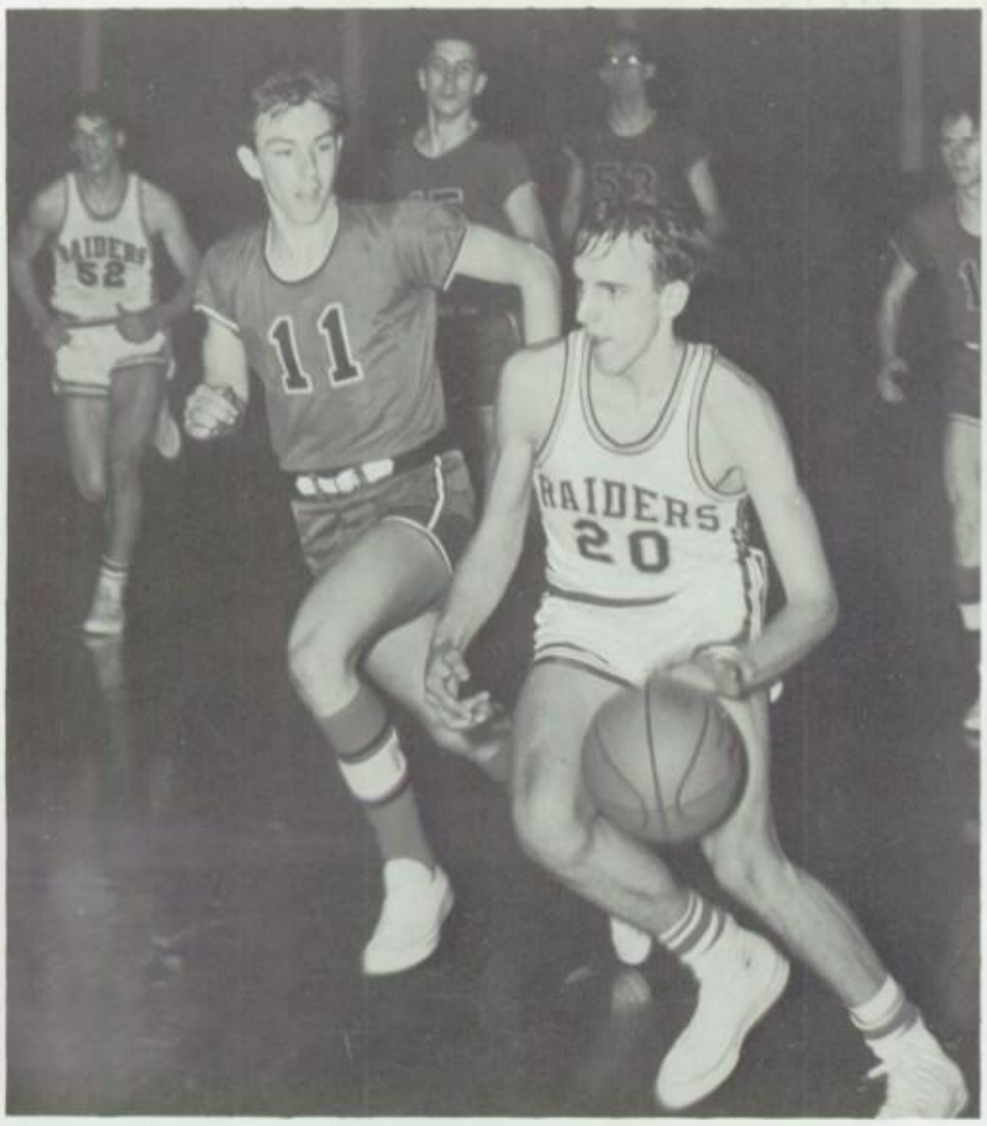
During the past season, the Raiders lost 12 out of 18 games. Although the season was discouraging, it had its bright spots.

Preceding the regular season, the roundballers competed in the Streator Invitational Tournament and placed second. The Raiders then defeated Mattoon, 76-62, to begin the regular season. The cagers also defeated Danville, 71-38, and 67-57, U. High, 63-52, and Springfield.

In the Springfield contest Jim Cox, Raider playmaker, swished a 50-foot jump shot in the last few seconds to win the game, 70-68. Cox, averaging 18.5 points per game, led the Raiders to most of their victories.

During the season the Raiders looked impressive in the rebounding department with an average of 35.4 rebounds per game. Leading the pack, Jim Sprague averaged 10 caroms per contest. Following Sprague were Mike Campbell, Cox, Greg Dambold, and Clark Hoover, averaging 6.2, 5.2, 4.7, and 3.6, respectively.

Raider captain Jim Cox goes up for two points against Willie Southall in a losing effort against the Urbana Tigers.



In the Intercity game against Normal Community, Senior Clark Hoover demonstrates his hustle by driving around a defender.

Junior Varsity Has Winning Season

Steve Mardis, junior varsity sparkplug, goes up over a Decatur defender in a fieldgoal attempt against the Reds.

Junior Varsity Basketball completed its second year during the 1967-68 season under Coach Gary Farnsworth. The team held contests with all the Intercity schools and three teams from the Big 12 Conference.

The junior Raiders posted a winning season with a record of six wins and five losses. In acquiring this record the squad overcame U High twice and beat every team at least once, with the exception of Decatur whom they played only once.

The main point producers for the basketball team were Juniors Steve Mardis and Steve Marks, who averaged 9.3 and 9.1 points respectively, and Senior Gene Garrett, who averaged 8.2 points per game.

In the rebounding department, Marks and Garrett were the leaders and were assisted by Norman Brown and Greg Heins. Heins also went nine games without missing a charity toss.

Yearlings Boast Successful Season

The fledgling basketball team provided high hopes for the future by running up the best sophomore record in 17 years. Coached by Les Wothke, the sophomore Raiders recorded an impressive 13-5 tally.

The young cagers displayed their enthusiasm through their hustle and desire and their ability to stage many comebacks.

Dec. 19, the sophomore squad dropped Central Catholic in a 62-50 victory; they then proceeded to overcome their next nine opponents. The winning streak was ended with a loss to Lincoln's sophomore squad, 82-66.

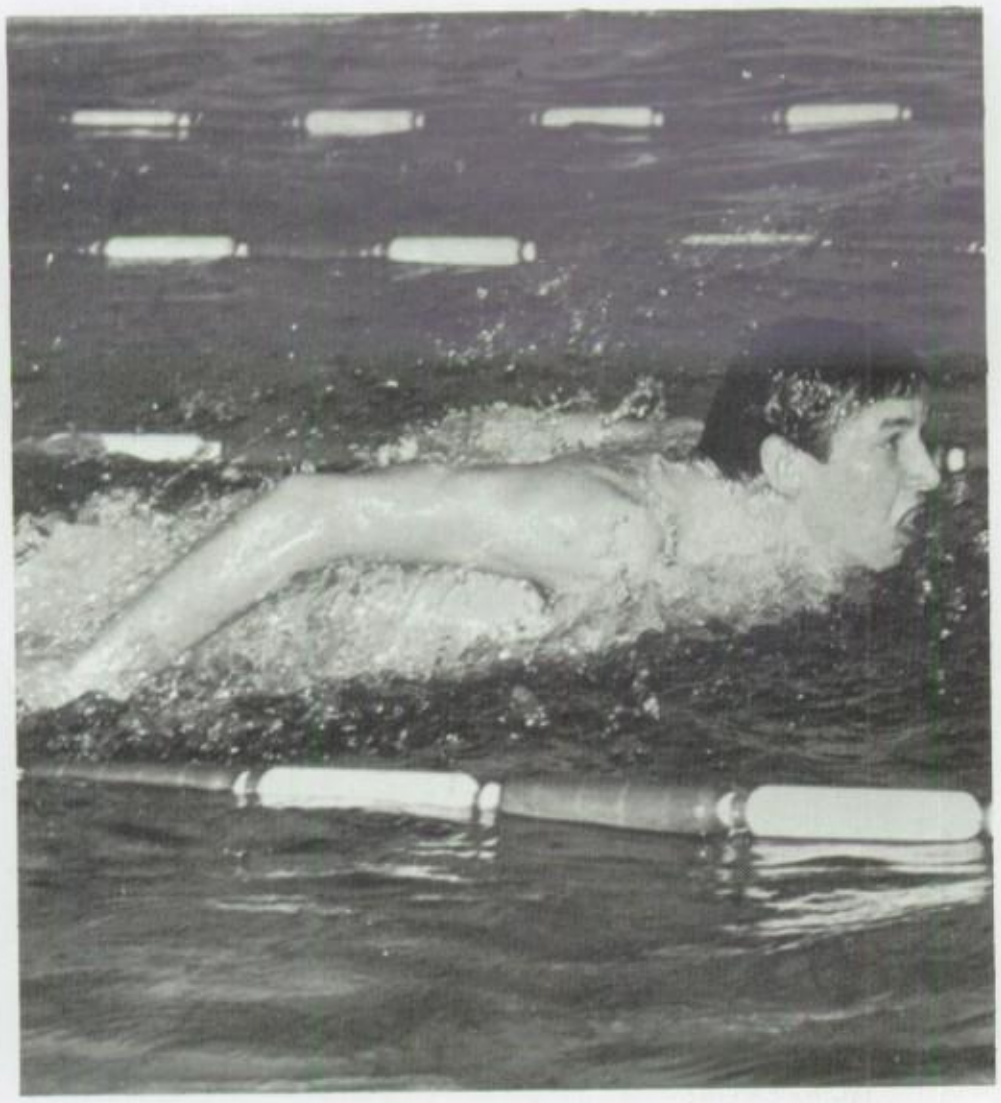
Tankers Take Second In Big 12 Meet

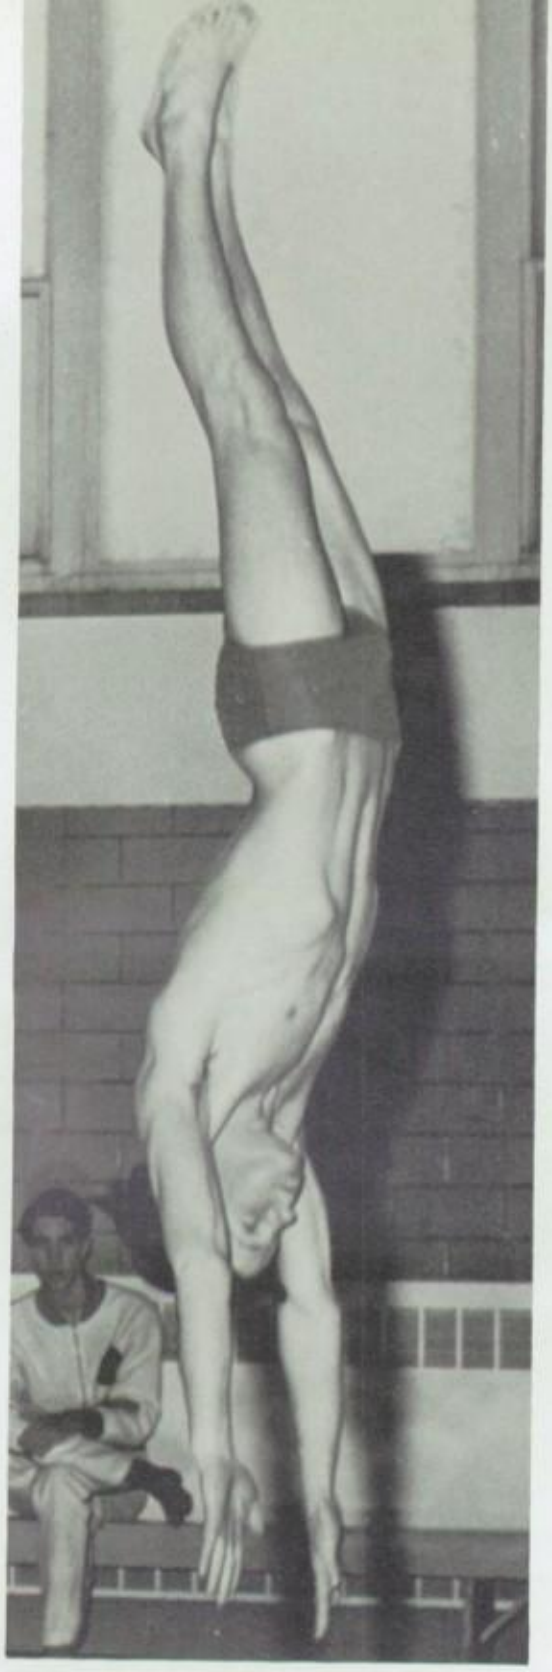


The 1967-68 season for the Raider swimming team started slowly but gradually rose to tidal wave proportions. The natators dropped two early season duals with Champaign Centennial and Danville but soon stormed back into competition. The squad maintained a respectable record for the rest of the season.

The year proved to be an unspectacular one until Big 12 action rolled around. In the conference meet, the freestyle relay team consisting of Jim Clark, Andy Todd, Doug Gildner, and Bill Baxter took first place, just missing the old conference record of 3:35.6 with a 3:40.0 time.

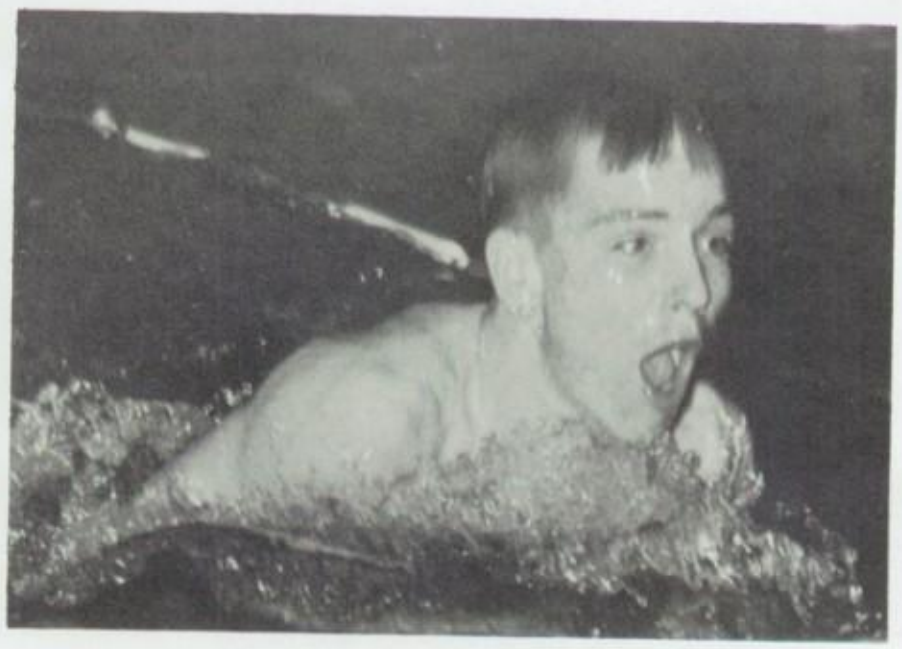
Junior diver Warren Randall captured first place honors along with Andy Todd who won the 100-yard freestyle event with a time of :52.0. Warren also grabbed second place honors at the District meet.

Jim Clark, junior letterman, seems to make water boil as he completes his final lap of the 100-yard butterfly event.



Letterman Pete Bower displays his unique diving form during a dual meet with the Danville Vikings.

Senior sprinting specialist, Bill Baxter, leaps to an early lead in the 50-yard freestyle event. In hot pursuit, although never able to catch him, is a Peoria Central swimmer.



Cliff Darnall, sophomore swimmer, pours it on in the breaststroke event with Champaign Central's Maroons.

Big 12 champion Warren Randall executes one of his high scoring dives in dual meet competition with Urbana.

Raider Grapplers Capture Big 12 Title

After a slow start the 1967-68 Raider wrestlers won eight straight meets and the Big 12 championship, while compiling a dual meet record of 12-3.

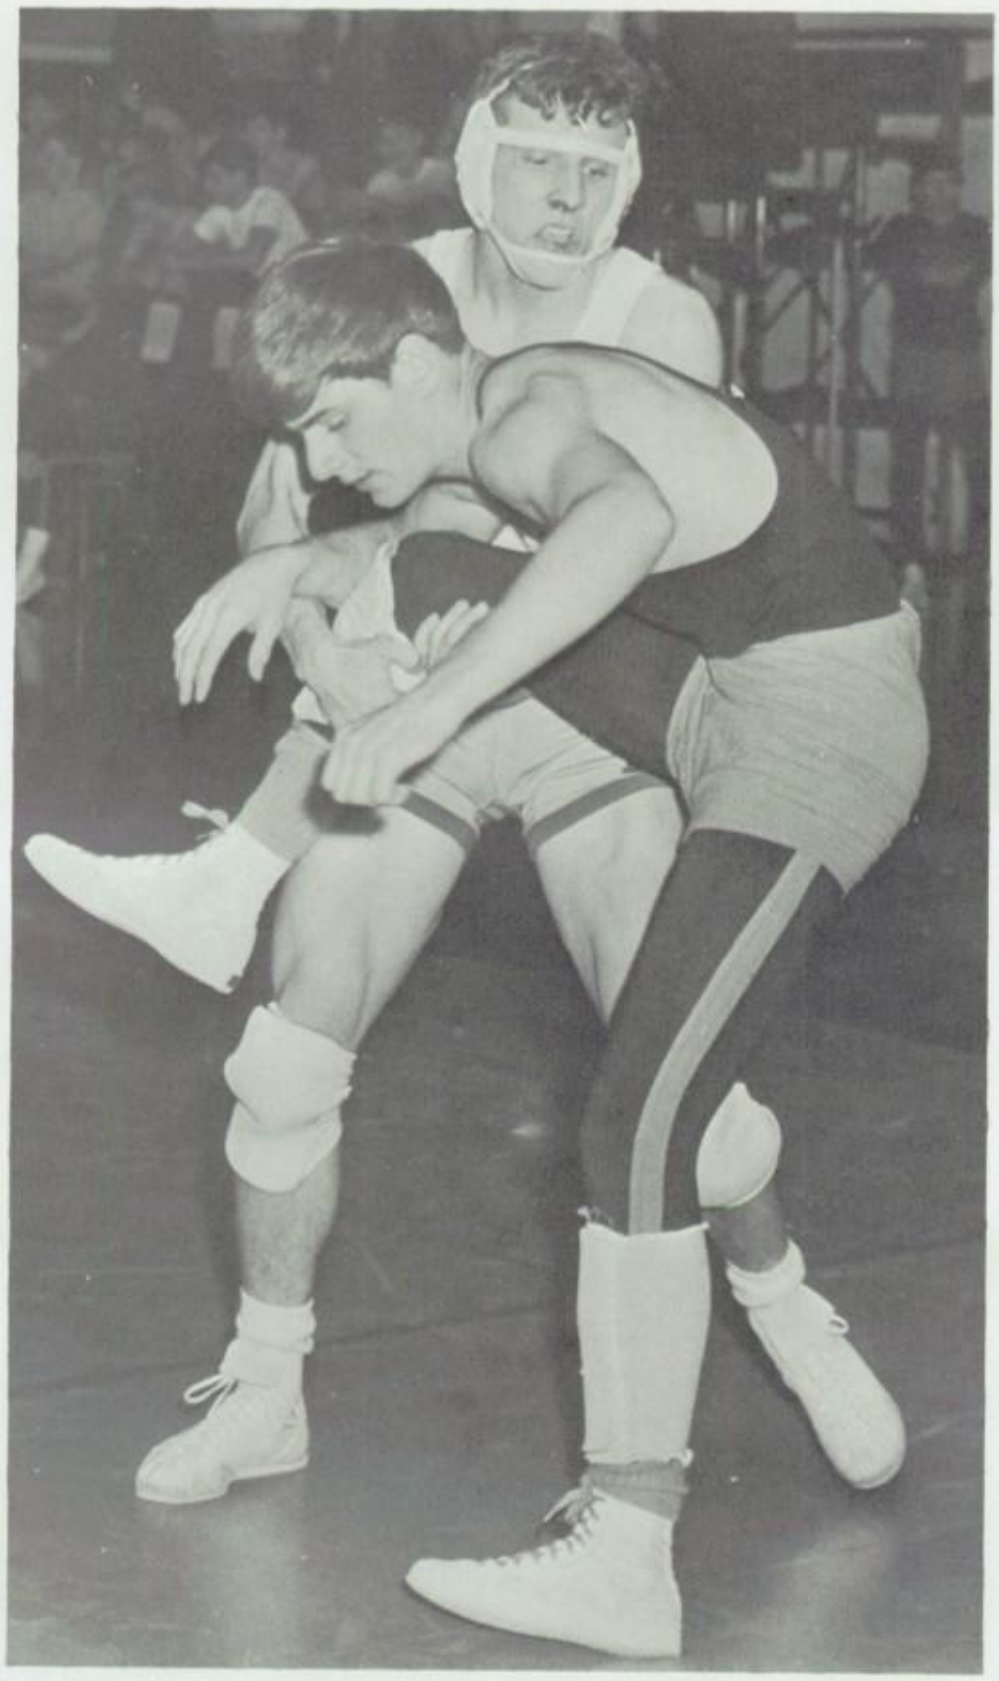
Following a stunning loss to Pekin, 25-14, the team rallied to drop eight consecutive adversaries and then win the conference championship.

The Raider matmen, led by Tom Bowen, Dave McDaniels, and Barry Smoots, captured three firsts, five seconds, and one third place to edge out favored Champaign by four points.

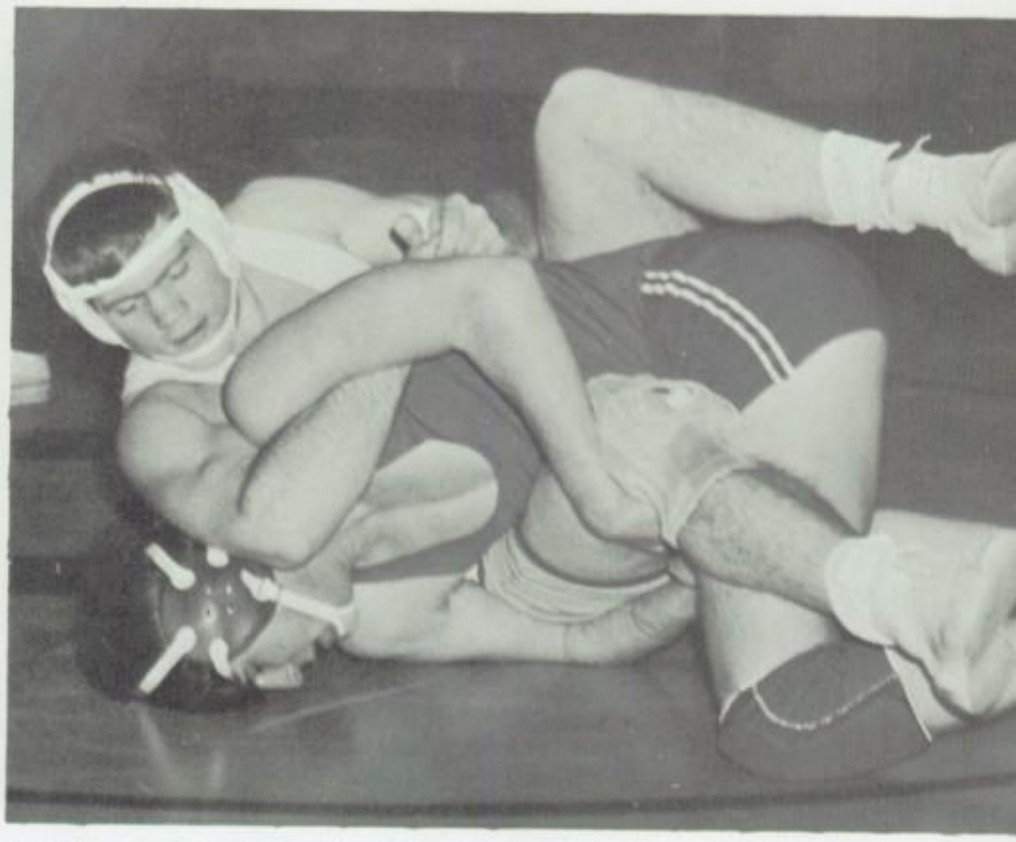
Bowen as heavyweight and Smoots at 95 pounds won Raider titles in the District. Squad members snared five second places to finish second in the meet. All seven grapplers journeyed to Champaign for sectional competition.

As a climax to the wrestling season, the Raiders placed seventh in the Sectional meet at Champaign, where high hopes for a state birth were destroyed when all seven Raiders failed to place.

Senior Alan Brooks, on his way to a 5-3 victory, attempts to successfully break down John Freeman of Decatur.



Boosting his record to 11-3, Senior Chuck Cunningham, though his nose is bleeding, executes a one-leg takedown on Normal's Chris Delzell in an overwhelming victory of 13-3.



On his way to an impressive 9-4 victory, Ed Rust, a 180-pound senior Raider wrestler, works on Jacksonville's Steve Maurer.

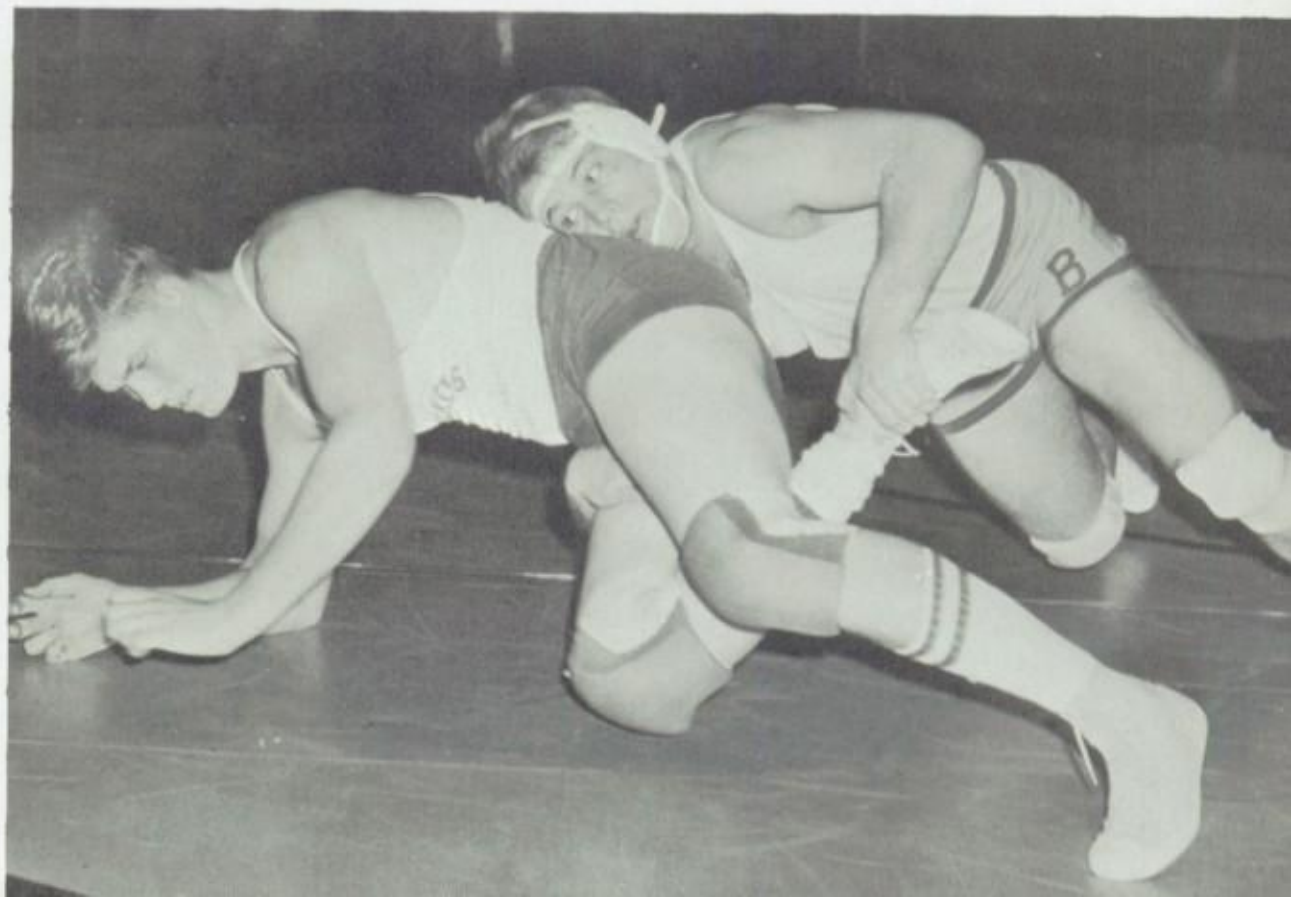
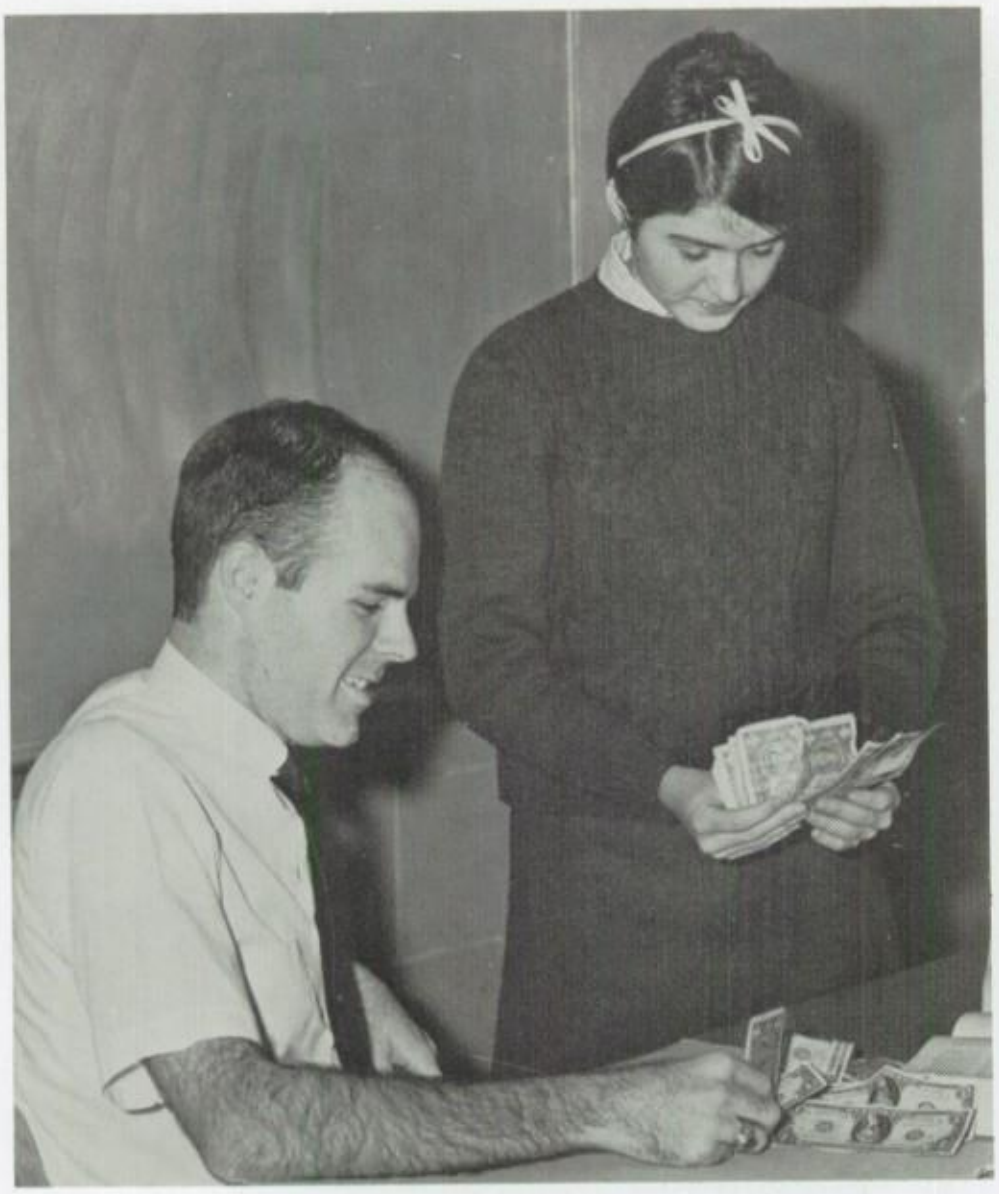
In an effort to break down his opponent, Tom Bowen controls his man's legs in a 4-0 victory.





A frenzied week of campaigning for the Junior class offices initiated the class of '69's hectic year. The race was so close that a run-off election was needed. For the first time in this class's history a write-in candidate, Kathy Tackett, overpowered her nominated opponent Laurie Livingston.

Another fall activity was the taking of the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test, which tested the juniors' ability to reason with facts.

During the winter months, talks were given by representatives from colleges, vocational films were shown in the auditorium, Christmas baskets were prepared for the needy, and the class of '69 joined in the "Raider Race" to the United Fund goal.

In the spring a committee made up of representatives from each junior homeroom planned the biggest event of the year, the Junior-Senior Prom.

Thus, in June, a very energetic and memorable year came to a close.

Junior Sally Cox and Harold Blair, homeroom teacher, count contributions from students for the United Fund Campaign.

RAINBOW

Dance, Activities Lure Juniors, Seniors

A warm spring evening, a huge rainbow, a wishing well, and the rhythm of Gary Newton's Orchestra blended to set the mood for the 1967 Junior-Senior Prom "Wish Me a Rainbow."

A quick trip home meant a change from formal to casual clothing. The evening's activities continued with a brunch served by junior parents in the cafeteria. In a carnival atmosphere, students enjoyed submarine sandwiches and other favorite goodies.

Appetities satisfied, couples migrated to the gym where they danced to the music of the Shattertones and participated in games of skill.

The festivities ended in the wee hours with a breakfast of rolls, coffee, and milk. Tired but happy after many fun-filled hours, couples reluctantly went home.

During after-Prom activities a senior takes one of his three possible tries to sink the ball at the Basket Toss.

Indian Encourages Spirit At Games

During the Homecoming game, the Pep Club section responds with an exuberant yell as the Raiders make the winning touchdown.

Completing its fourth year, Pep Club proved to be a valuable asset in promoting school spirit for the major and minor sports. Led by the cheerleaders and mascot Sally Cox, the 562 members supported the Raiders with enthusiasm.

Bus transportation enabled the students to follow their team to distant games. At the beginning of the year, students purchased a card that provided them with a reserved seat at the contests and a reduced price in bus trips for the out-of-town games.

Highlighting the year, Pep Club achieved an ultimate goal by adopting an Iroquois Indian as the school's first official Raider symbol. The club members also sported purple and gold beanies for the first time.

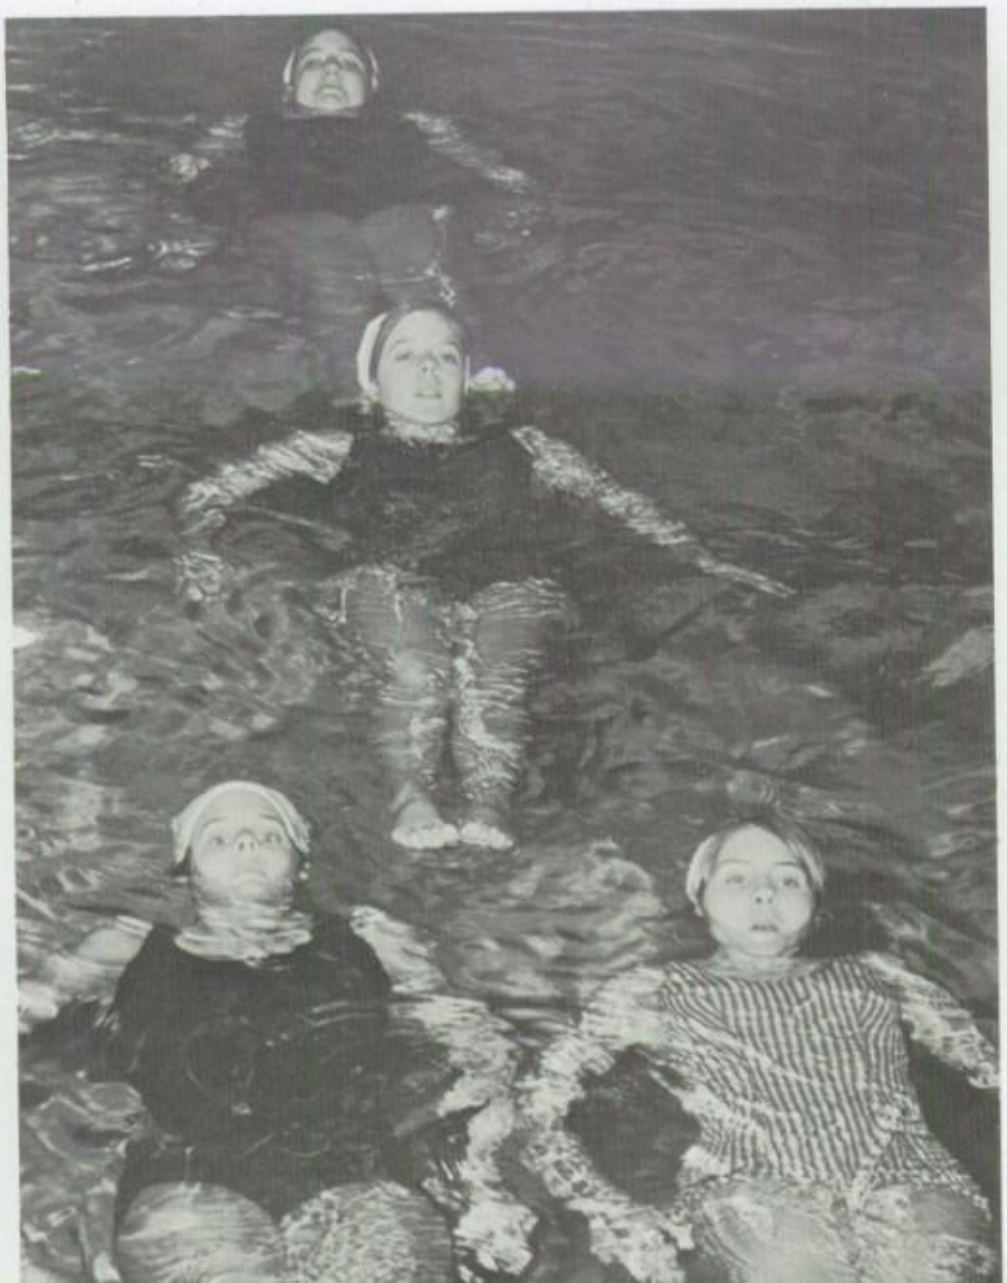
Swimmers Improve Aquatic Abilities



Boys aren't the only ones interested in sports and physical fitness.

This year the 17 members of Swim Club proved this statement true by demonstrating their swimming art. They showed a genuine interest in practicing long hours to improve their skills for the annual end-of-the-year water show.

The "cast" of the water show was chosen on the basis of tryouts. Hopefuls were asked to demonstrate their synchronized swimming, water ballet, and general swimming abilities.

Although hampered at the beginning of the year by glass in the pool due to a broken window, the girls worked diligently for the coming water show.

Synchronized swimming turned out to be a lot of hard work, but the girls showed their enthusiasm by presenting Adviser Miss Marian Pilarski with a big bouquet of roses and a dip in the pool.

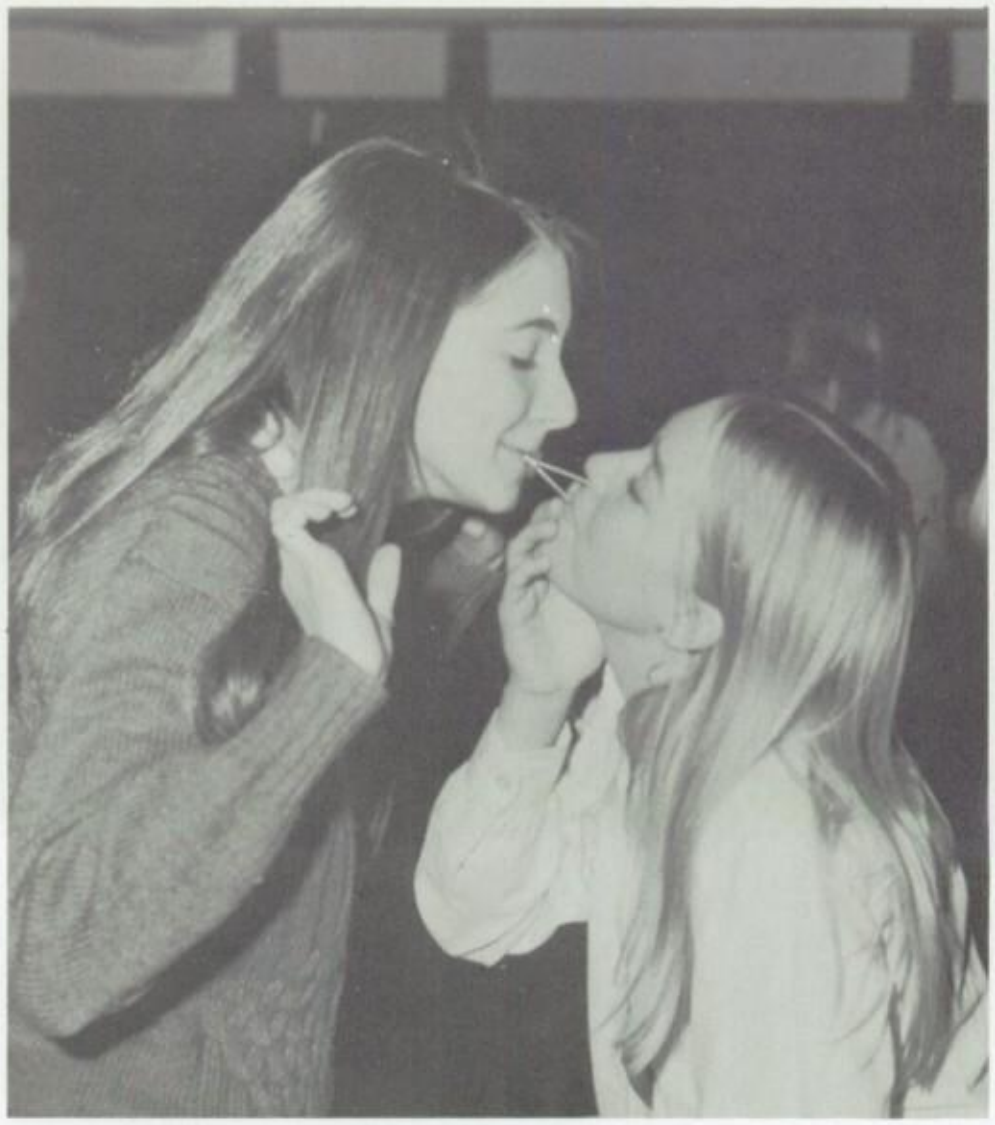
"Board meeting in G-1 at 3:40." This message appeared on the girls' locker room door many Wednesdays throughout the year. Following the messages, elective members of the Executive Board met with their adviser, Mrs. Diane McNeilly, to organize the activities of the Girls' Athletic Association.

Initiating the activities in the fall, the club held a traditional wiener roast after school. Members banded into teams to compete against each other in such vigorous games as volleyball and kickball. The latter sport created such a problem that a human chain had to be made to retrieve the ball from Sugar Creek. Entertainment to complete the evening included a "sing-a-long."

The Christmas party was visited by jolly old Santa. At the party, girls participated in relay games, grapefruit passing, running an obstacle course, and selecting gifts from a grab bag.

Spring brought the annual Mother-Daughter Banquet which concluded the year for G.A.A.



Juniors Kristi Burt and Kris Taylor attempt to pass a lifesaver on a toothpick at the annual G.A.A. Christmas party.

Instructors Stress Physical Fitness

Faculty members of the Physical Education Department succeeded in making their classes challenging. They offered a wide variety of activities throughout the year and administered physical fitness tests in the spring and fall.

Sophomore boys struggled through a unit in coed dance, while junior boys exhibited "unlimited" strength in weight lifting. The senior boys engaged one another's strength in wrestling and took advice from participating instructors.

While the boys improved their muscle tone and agility, the girls became more poised and physically fit. Sophomore girls pounded down the basketball court, junior girls were instructed in free exercise, and seniors endured a six-week body mechanics course. Instructors created an awareness of weight problems and emphasized the importance of exercise for an attractive figure.

Drivers Contend With October Snow

Paul Hultgren, junior, poises for action as Mr. Morin, driver education teacher, prepares to test his brake reaction time.

"You going to hit that tree? It's a big sucker!" These words were calmly uttered by a Driver Education teacher during a close call.

Such occurrences were frequent during behind-the-wheel training. Students learned to park, back up, and drive in downtown and highway traffic. All who passed this portion of the course were awarded a drivers instruction certificate.

Young drivers also studied the "Rules of the Road," driving courtesy, safety measures, and fundamentals of the car's engine. Classroom instruction was co-ordinated with behind-the-wheel training so that pupils could apply their knowledge and experience their new responsibility.

The Future Business Leaders of America started off their year by planning various club projects.

At the club's initiation members dressed in Halloween costumes and walked through an obstacle course of eggs. Even the adviser, Miss Helen Shippy, participated in the affair by dressing as a clown.

The club's money-making projects for the year centered around bake sales. The club set $200 as its goal. This money was used for the expenses of two conferences, a Central Area Conference in November and the State Convention in April.

At Christmas time the members became involved in two projects. They donated their services to the Christmas Seal campaign and also went caroling to different homes in the community.

Distributors Appraise Store Windows

The highlight of the year for the members of Distributive Education Club was a fall field trip to Chicago, where they viewed the Merchandise Mart and the Board of Trade and rated the show windows on State Street. To improve their sales techniques and make money, students sold desk blotters during the winter.

Field trips to the Peoples Bank, Bloomington Association of Commerce, the Credit Bureau, Beich Candy Company, and Illinois Agricultural Association highlighted the activities of this year's Office Occupations Club. In keeping with tradition the students went caroling at Christmas time and prepared a fresh fruit basket, which they delivered to a local nursing home.

In the spring the members of the Office Occupations and Distributive Education Clubs hosted their annual banquet to thank their employers for their job opportunities.

As part of his on-the-job training Mike Parido, with the aid of Mr. Cy Suing, Montgomery Wards' salesman, moves a home appliance into position for the store's upcoming attic sale.

With their aim being to equip students for the business world after graduation, instructors expected neatness and accuracy, not only in the typing classes, but also in general business.

Distributive education and office occupations gave interested students an opportunity to apply their knowledge and learn directly from community businessmen.

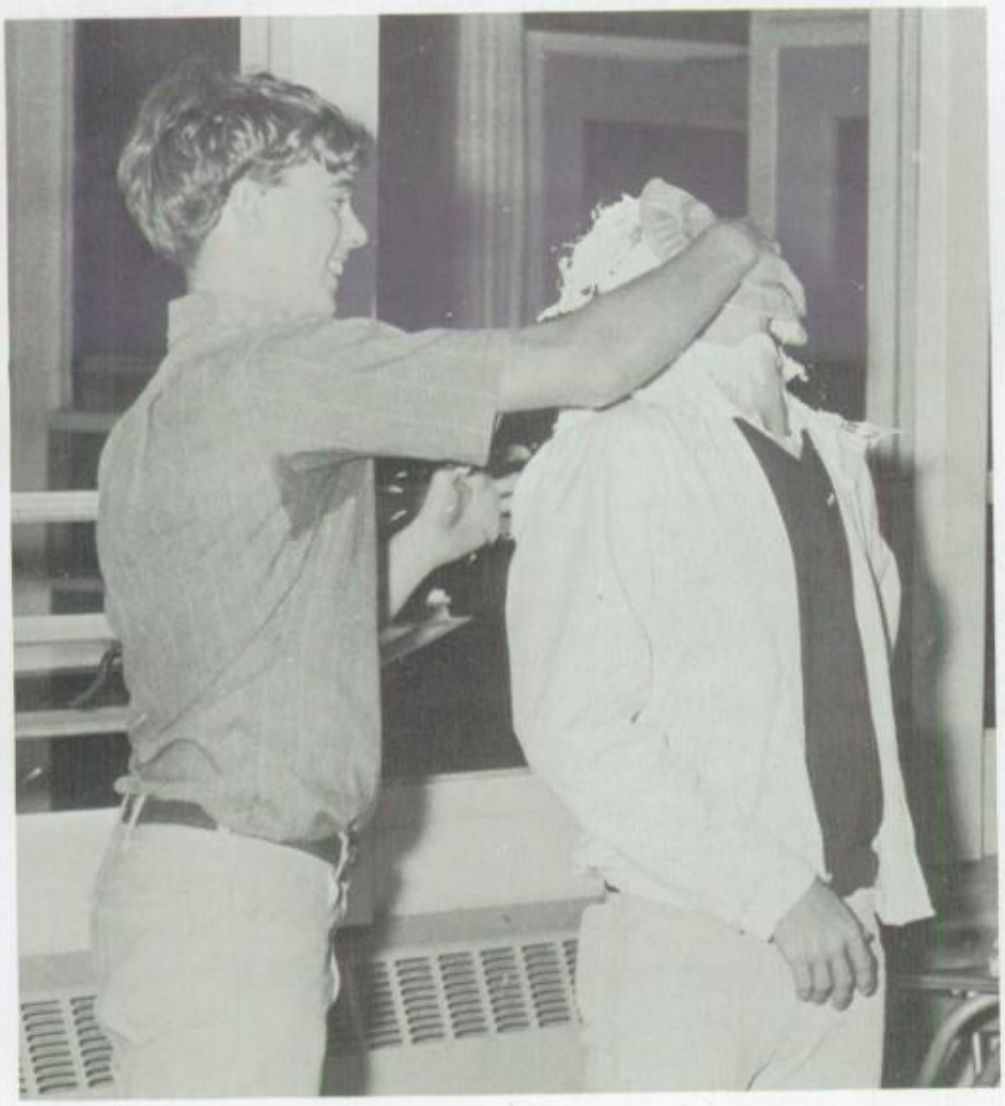
Initiates Fail Exam, Suffer Penalties



Once again, incoming juniors and seniors faced pledge tags, original initiations, and the puzzling "SOHCAHTOA" and "SCITAMEHTAM."

After failing a "simple" mathematics test, the initiates suffered various punishments. Members used red and green spray frosting to play tic-tac-toe on several initiates' faces.

More serious meetings included speakers and field trips. At the second meeting, as club adviser Lowell Stultz explained and discussed "Gotran," a method of computer programming, each member filled out his own program.

On game night Gordon Chace, junior, boastfully stated that he was undefeated at Hex. When asked who his opponent was, Gordon answered, "Me!"

Concluding the year, juniors and seniors competed against each other in a baseball game at the annual spring picnic.

Senior Clint Soper penalizes initiate Mike Clodfelter for failing a "simple" mathematics test by throwing a cream pie in his face. Other initiates suffered similar consequences.

Department Adds Analog Computer

What resembles an oversized electric slide rule and calculates complicated multiplication, division, volume, and area problems with ease? The school's recently acquired Analog computer performs all of these functions.

The arrival of the Analog computer annexed "computer knowledge" to junior and senior curricula. John McAtee's juniors studied the use of the Analog computer and Logic Circuit Design. Students divided into two committees—one to study, design, and build an electric slide rule, and another to design and build a Boolean simulator. In anticipation of forthcoming computers, Lowell Stultz introduced to his seniors Digital Computer Programing and Error Analysis in Approximate Data.

Mathematics instructor Lowell Stultz explains to Junior Chris Henderson how to solve a complicated multiplication problem through the use of the department's new Analog computer.

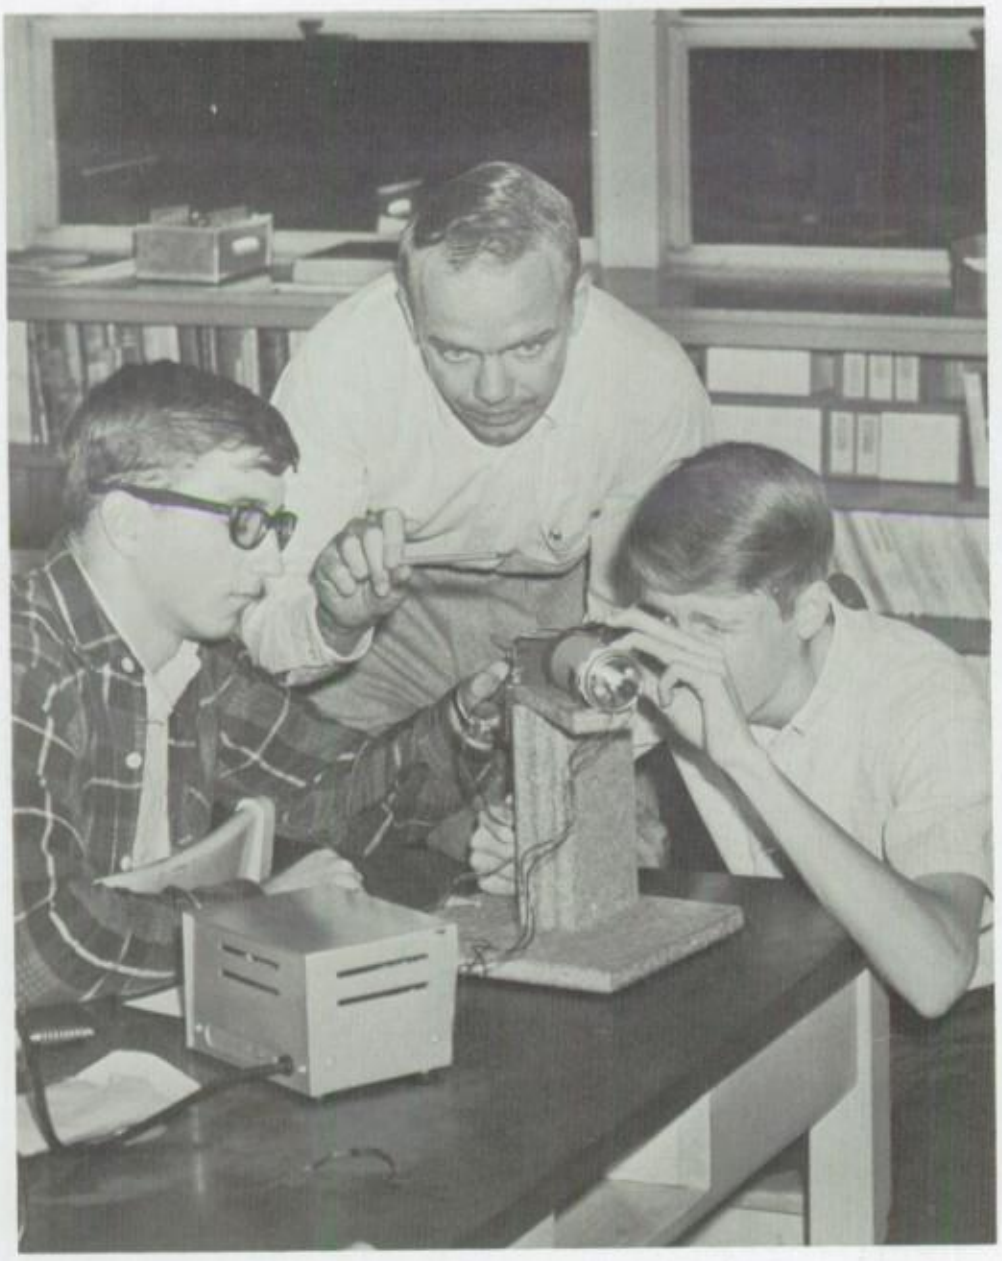
Scientists See Planetarium's Yule Star



Variety was the key to the Academy of Science. If one walked through the halls during one of the many evenings when the members were working, he was met by the smell of burning sulfur and the unpleasant odor of formaldehyde.

Upon entering the biology room he might see a student straining his eyes over a microscope.

In the next room, beyond the bubbling test tubes, were excited faces hoping they had finally done the experiment correctly.

The physics section was characterized by slide rules, piles of papers, and a small group of interested star gazers.

While running for the door to escape the odors, one might have tripped on a rock, for yet another segment of the Academy of Science met downstairs. This was the geology group.

All of the groups in the Academy of Science combined to "create further interest in the field of science" by a field trip to the planetarium at I.S.U.

This statement probably sounds familiar if you were a member of Mrs. Valerie White's biology class during frog dissecting time.

Besides dissecting frogs, students were involved in various scientific activities, such as writing reports on osmosis and catalysis experiments.

Along with these new experiments, some science students were greeted by two new faculty members, Amos Morris and Mrs. Constance Schnebly. Both of these instructors aided in teaching the college preparatory courses, Chemistry and Biology I.

Students not bound for college but who were interested in science enrolled in courses including Biology, Agriculture, Chemistry 2 and Physics 2.

Diamondmen Work Towards Perfection

Senior letterman Marty Wood scoops up a hard hit ground ball.

The 1968 diamondmen attempted to continue the squad's winning ways with after school practice sessions. These sessions helped Coach Carroll Wood's '67 squad attain a 13-8 record.

Those Raiders who led in the '67 regular season and their batting averages were Jim Sprague (391), Randy Bozarth (314), Jim Cox (281), Carl Tepper (250), Steve Mardis (225), Chuck Cunningham (212), and Mike Potts (148).

In the District the Raiders easily rolled over U. High in their first game, 15-1. After defeating Central Catholic and Bellflower, the squad was downed by Clinton to receive second place honors.

Thinclads Initiate Strenuous Workouts

Workouts began months before the 1968 track team was to face the rugged competition from high school squads throughout the state. As its goal, the '68 squad hoped to equal and possibly surpass the impressive 1967 squad record.

Compiling a record of 5-2 in dual meets, the '67 thinclads also captured first and second in the Lincoln and Normal relays, respectively. A first place win in Intercity as well as third place honors in the Big 12 and District contests, added a little polish to the already shining record.

Ed Rogers became the first Raider to become a state champion as he heaved the discus 176 feet 8 inches in the Illinois Track and Field Championships in Champaign. This distance smashed the old record of 175 feet 5½ inches.

With the backing of 16 lettermen including Seniors Tom Wilson, Ernie Rusk, and Gary Blake, the squad's success came as no surprise.

Junior broad jumper Chris Henderson strains for distance in a training session before track season officially began.

With a mighty leap, Norman Brown, junior high-jumper, hurles himself over the bar for a qualifying jump.

Lettermen Tom Echols and Wheeler Bell spring quickly from the starting blocks in one of their vigorous practice sessions.

Third year letterman Tom Bowen grits his teeth before throwing the shot.

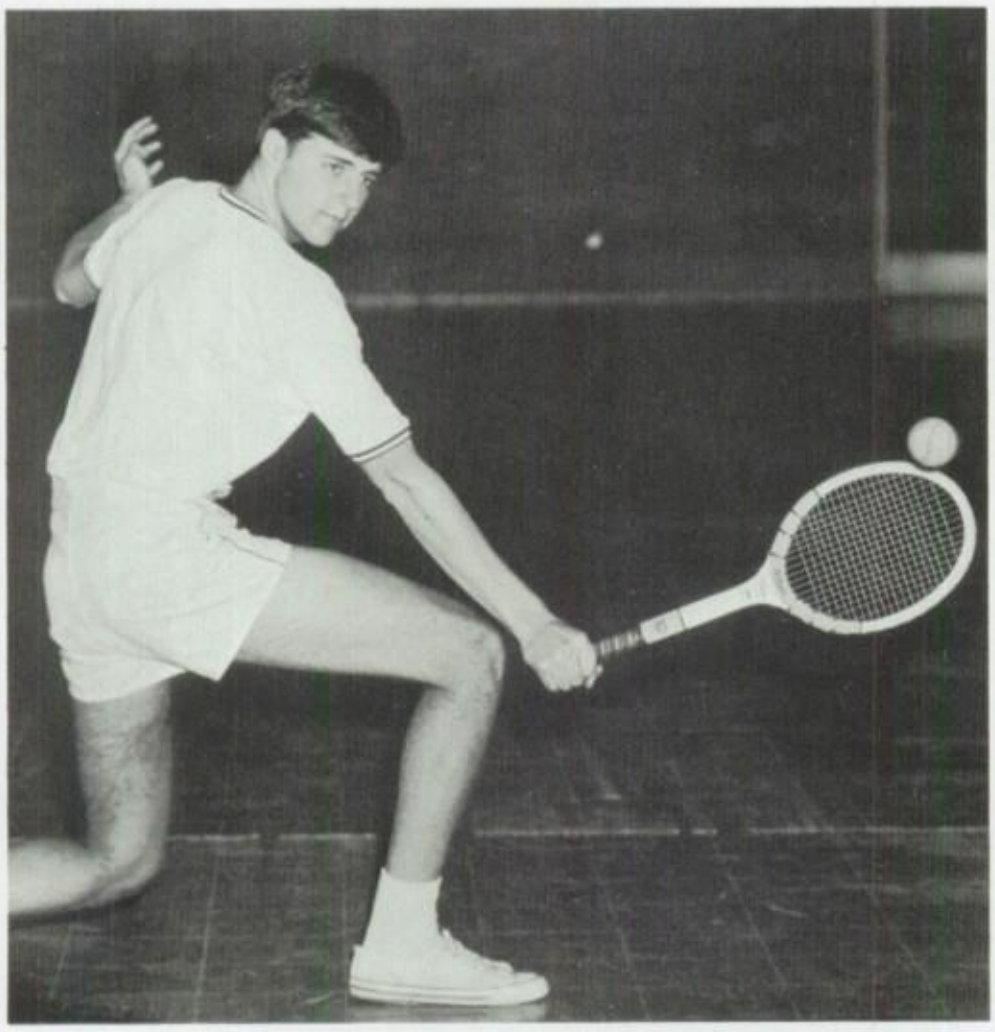
Surprise Snow Storm Hinders Netters



Senior captain Rick Busse attempts to foil his opponent and win the set by returning the volley with a backhand shot.

Even with a sudden snow storm in March, the 1968 tennis squad prepared for the upcoming season.

The '67 squad was led by six lettermen. They included Ted Dossett, Marty Luehrs, Rick Busse, Bob Barrett, Gene Baltz, and Earl Pinney.

The netters finished their dual meet season with a 11-7 record and took third in the District and fourth in Big 12 competition.

Golfers Strive To Surpass '67 Record

Although construction hindered the '68 golf squad's practice, members tried to better the '67 record. The 1967 team boasted a 12-4 dual meet mark, a district championship, a second place in the Big 12, and an eleventh position at the state meet. While at the Champaign Invitational, the linksmen faltered to a 14th position.

The squad was led by five returning lettermen: Tom Gilfillan, Robby Lane, Mark Stevens, Stan Edmunds, and Steve Nuckles.

During the month of December, D.A.R. citizenship awards were presented to Nancy Alikonis and James Cox.

Cox, Alikonis Share D.A.R. Honors

Jim Cox and Nancy Alikonis, two outstanding students, received recognition for their achievements by being named winners of the 1968 Good Citizenship Awards. The Letitia Green Stevenson Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution has annually sponsored the awards. The recipients were selected by the senior class and the faculty on the criteria of dependability, leadership, patriotism, and service.

Jim, who served as Senior Class Vice President, excelled in athletics during his high school career. He participated in football, basketball, and baseball as well as Orchestra, Band, French Club, Mu Alpha Theta, and the Academy of Science.

Nancy's many activities included class secretary, A Cappella, French Club, Girls' Athletic Association, Mu Alpha Theta, Thespians, and Madrigals.

Nancy Alikonis, left, and Jim Cox willingly spend time after school to broaden their knowledge in the field of science. Here, in a catalysis experiment, they assist each other.

Officers Aid In Organizing Activities

Though the "serious seniors" spent many hours studying, they could always find time for fun.

Enjoyable activities during the year were the pep assemblies and after-game dances. Several senior boys demonstrated their school spirit at the assemblies by dressing up as cheerleaders. Live combos provided music for the dances.

Senior officers kept busy during the year choosing graduation announcements and planning Skip Day and the Senior Banquet.

Responsibility was the key word as twenty-seven seniors took over the city on Student Government Day, occupying the offices of mayor, city-manager, councilmen and other city offices.

Mary Jo Rousey and Jim Bryant get in the swing of things at one of several after-game dances sponsored by Student Council.

Senior Will Torments Underclassmen

Students find the new bus service a convenient way of reaching school each day.

The cafeteria provides a pleasant place for seniors to relax during a busy day.

Society Initiates New Members

The 44 newly-elected members of the National Honor Society were chosen on the basis of class rank, scholastic achievements, leadership qualities, service to the school, and character.

Students were inducted into the society by a formal initiation. Criteria for membership was read by active National Honor Society members.

On the following day, members were presented to the student body in an all-school assembly. They were congratulated by Principal G. Elwood Wheeler and Assistant Principal Charles L. Cox. The scholars were also presented with certificates and pens of membership.

Highlighting the assembly was an address by Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. Fred C. McDavid. Dr. McDavid congratulated the seniors and added that he hoped they would serve as an example for aspiring underclassmen.

Alan Brooks receives his National Honor Society pin and a firm handshake from Principal G. Elwood Wheeler.

Autumn, Winter and Spring are the seasons of achievement. During these seasons students have the opportunity to explore the world of education. In the year of 1967-1968, skills were perfected, research performed, and various studies completed. As editors of the 1968 Aepix, we have attempted to capture the most memorable events of this year. We hope that you, the students and teachers, can obtain a sense of satisfaction and pride in the fact that without your help this year would not have been a season of achievement and many happy memories.

We also wish to express our regret that we could not recognize all of the tragic deaths of students and faculty due to our early publication deadlines.
